This volume was completed to offer essential basic information on China's economic and social development in 1989 and to illustrate the major trends in this development since 1978. China Statistical Abstract 1990 contains key statistics for principal sections of the national economy by selected years since 1978. There are nine sections: General Survey, Population and Labor Force, Agriculture, Industry, Transportation, Postal and Telecommunication Services, Investment in Fixed Assets, Finance, Trade and Price, People's Livelihood, Education, Science, Culture, Public Health and Sports. With the exception of the total surface area of the country, figures for Taiwan are not included in the national figures. Some figures in this survey are provisional and the final ones will appear in the Statistical Yearbook of China. This book is a revised English language edition of the official China Statistical Abstract published by the State Statistical Bureau of the People's Republic of China (SSB). The SSB compiled all the statistics contained in this edition. The reader should note some additions and corrections in China Statistical Abstract 1990. For example, several tables in Section 1 contain Gross National Product statistics from 1978 to 1989. Some adjustments on data from 1978 to 1988 have also been made for three reasons: First, data in some tables have been adjusted in accord with changes in the definition of concepts and measurements. Second, because the information used in this volume is obtained from preliminary reports of branch sections of the SSB, data are revised after the final reports are completed. Third, some minor changes have been made due to rounding off of data published in previous years. The China Statistics Series, 1989

China's Economic Dilemmas in the 1990s The Joint Economic Committee, 2016-09-16. Most students of contemporary China are familiar with the Joint Economic Committee studies on China which have appeared periodically since 1967. This is the most recent study in the series released in April 1991. This volume follows the format of the previous studies offering a broad sweep of its subject matter. The 50 chapters contributed by Chinese scholars in government universities and private research centres are divided into five major parts. Each section begins with an overview which summarises and comments on the main points in each of the chapters. The volume offers a detailed examination of China's economy and the political and social factors currently facing the leadership in Beijing. China in Transition George T. Yu, 1993-07-02. An all inclusive guide to the political and social development of modern China. The Third Revolution in the Chinese Countryside Ross Garnaut, Guo Shutian, Ma Guonan, 1996-04-18. The first revolution in the Chinese countryside was the land reform implemented in the liberated areas and extended throughout China after the proclamation of the People's Republic of China in 1949. This was important in the consolidation of the Communist Party's political power. The second revolution was the decollectivization of agriculture and the shift to the household responsibility system as a basis for agricultural production. The phenomenal increase in Chinese agricultural output from 1978 to 1984 resulted partly from the new system of production and with a resulting explosion of farm incomes. The second revolution in the Chinese countryside from the late 1970s set the scene for the third revolution, the freeing of markets for farm products and the linking of domestic markets and international markets. The third revolution is still in progress and this book explores its beginnings. Initially the book covers the issues of poverty in China and feeding the population The second section describes the agricultural markets in China and the price reform of agricultural products The next two parts discuss international and regional issues of China s agricultural economy Finally there are contributions on what institutional changes have been associated with the third agricultural revolution The contributions are from a team of experts on the Chinese economy from inside and outside China led by Professor Garnaut
