China's Urban Transition John Friedmann,2005 A timely and thorough analysis of the rapid urban growth in China

Urban China in Transition John Logan,2011-07-22 Using an innovative approach this book interprets the unprecedented transformation of contemporary China s major cities It deals with a diversity of trends and analyzes their sources Offers a multi dimensional analysis of urban life in China Highlights a diversity of trends in the areas of migration criminal victimization gated communities and the status of women suburbanization and neighbourhood associations Each chapter includes input from both an expert on urban life in China and an outside expert from the fields of sociology geography economics planning political science history demography architecture or anthropology An alternative theoretical perspective comparing the Chinese experience with other urban settings in the United States Poland Russia Vietnam East and South East Asia and South America

China's Continuing Urban Transition ,2002

The Transition of China's Urban Development Jieming Zhu,1999-08-30 From 1949 to today China has experienced dramatic changes in its economy and urban development This book examines these changes and looks at one city Shenzhen in detail The performance and behavior of a fledgling property market in the transitional economy are analyzed in the backdrop of real estate commodification and marketization Students and researchers in urban geography urban planning economics business and real estate will find this monograph lucid and original Two distinctive periods divide the last fifty years of development in China The period 1949 to 1978 was dominated by central planning After 1978 however economic reforms brought a new property market to many of China s cities The economic surge of this period has transformed these cities and helped create new metropolises The special economic zone of Shenzhen grew from what was until 1980 a landscape predominantly made up of rice paddy fields and traditional villages By 1995 the population of the city grew to more than two and a half million Two modes of land provision are identified as the main contributors to Shenzhen s urban development process which is also echoed in other Chinese cities Incremental urban land reforms are elaborated within a broad framework of institutional change while marketization has brought many changes to Chinese society Continued urban reform toward a market economy seems now irreversible

The Rural-urban Transition and Development in China University of British Columbia. Centre for Human Settlements,Asian Urban Research Network,1999

Exploring China's Urban Transition in the Republican Period Melissa Chen,2019 This research aimed to investigate the underlying reasons and influences behind the transition of the residential built form in China from the traditional Chinese style to the Western garden suburb style during the Republican period In order to achieve this objective existing resources were examined regarding Chinese history traditional Chinese built form Western garden suburbs Western urban morphology and conservation and Chinese urban morphology and conservation Two case studies were also carried out in Nanjing and Guangzhou respectively first studying their social cultural and economic background during the era of change and then using typomorphological concepts to analyse the observed aspects of change in the chosen historical residential areas The findings of the research show that it is social and political influences that caused the most dramatic changes to urban form even in areas previously resilient to change The changes in residential form in Nanjing the political centre of China during the Republican era and Guangzhou the economic centre provide strong evidence to support this theory Keywords Urban morphology Garden suburbs Urban landscape character Heritage conservation China China's Urban Space Terry McGee,George C.S. Lin,Mark Wang,Andrew Marton, Jiaping Wu,2007-10-18 This book presents an overview of the radical transformation of China s urban space since the 1970s arguing that to study the Chinese urbanization process one must recognize the distinctive political economy of China

Fangzhu Zhang,Fulong Wu,2023-11-03 This Handbook addresses how Chinese cities govern environmental changes generated by fast economic growth and urbanisation With in depth case studies on governing waste management climate change and energy transition it will illuminate the relationship between the state market and society in environmental governance China's Urban Space Terry McGee,George C.S. Lin,Mark Wang,Andrew Marton, Jiaping Wu,2007-10-18 China s urban growth is unparalleled in the history of global urbanization and will undoubtedly create huge challenges to China as it modernizes its society Adopting an interdisciplinary approach this book presents an overview of the radical transformation of China s urban space since the 1970s arguing that to study the Chinese urbanization process one must recognize the distinctive political economy of China After a long period as a planned socialist economy China s rapid entry into the global economy has raised suggestions that modernization in China will inevitably result in urban patterns and features like those of cities in developed market economies This book argues that this is unlikely in the short term because processes of urban transition in China must be interpreted through the lens of a unique and unprecedented juxtaposition of socialism and the market economy which is leading to distinctive patterns of Chinese urbanization Richly illustrated with maps diagrams and in depth case studies this book will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars of urban economics and policy geography and the development of China

Becoming Urban in the Chinese Way Lili Wang,2016 The dissertation explores two aspects of China s urban transition 1 the often overlooked planning practices of local states and 2 the now hotly debated new town boom in China Using two case studies one about the shifting planning practices in Nanjing 1978 now and the other on the birth and growth of Nanjing s Hexi New Town 2001 2016 the dissertation contributes to the study of Chinese cities and urban studies in general in two significant ways Firstly it reconstructs the evolution of planning practices and new town movements in China at both national and local levels Secondly it reveals how plan making and new town development at a locality are assembling processes of heterogeneous social relations across time and space It also shows however that the Chinese state remains a paramount power in city making Local leaders continuously search fresh territories for economic growth and institutional legitimacy giving rise to a geography of accumulation as well as a geography of state ambition Through ethnographic studies the dissertation further suggests that to comprehend China s urban change and politics scholars should conceptualize the state party society triangulation

Urbanization in China's Lower Yangzi Delta Andrew Mark Marton,1998 Prepared by the East Asian Institute NUS which promotes research on East Asian developments particularly the political economic and social development of contemporary China including Hong Kong and Taiwan this series of research reports is intended for policy makers and readers who want to keep abreast of the latest developments in China

China's Urban Space George C. S. Lin,Andrew Marton,Mark Wang, Jiaping Wu,2011 This book presents an overview of the radical transformation of China s urban space since the 1970s arguing that to study the Chinese urbanization process one must recognize the distinctive political economy of China
