Chinas Military In Transition:

China's Military in Transition David L. Shambaugh, Richard Yang, Richard H. Yang, 1997 China's Military in Transition is the most comprehensive study of the Chinese People's Liberation Army (PLA) ever published. Drawing upon a broad range of documentary sources and interviews with many of the world's leading specialists on the Chinese military, it provides in depth and expert analyses of China's military modernization programme. This unprecedented volume covers many aspects of the PLA on the eve of the twenty-first century: party-army relations and the role of the PLA in domestic Chinese politics; the changing officer corps; the paramilitary People's Armed Police; troop reorganizations and the demobilization programme; national security and defence policy; decision-making processes; the military-industrial complex and defence industrial conversion; defence finance, budget and training; weapons procurement; nuclear force modernization; threat perceptions; power projection capabilities; and the military balance in the Taiwan Strait.

The People's Liberation Army and China in transition

Stephen J. Flanagan, Michael E. Marti, 2003 Antologi hvor forfatterne til de enkelte kapitler ikke indbyrdes altid er enige i de fremferte beskrivelser af udviklingen i det kinesiske samfund i almindelighed og det kinesiske militære samfund i særdeleshed. Med udgangspunkt i tiden efter 11. september 2001 beskrives den seneste generation af ledere i Kina og disses syn på kinesisk indenrigs og forsvarspolitik herunder også kinesisk holdning til terrorisme.

The People's Liberation Army
Stephen J. Flanagan, Michael E. Marti, 2012-07-18 The global war on terrorism has provided a new context for relations between the United States and China. As the September 2002 National Security Strategy of the United States of America makes clear, cooperation with China on a range of economic, political, security and military issues increasingly serves U.S. interests. At the same time, this relationship retains elements of competition and the potential for confrontation, compounded by a legacy of periodic crises and mutual wariness. Achieving a national consensus on an appropriate balance in U.S.-China relations, especially in military-to-military affairs, remains a central challenge for those who analyze, formulate and implement America's China policies.

China's Military Procurement in the Reform Era
Yoram Evron, 2015-06-26 The decisions that shape the policy of weapons procurement are an important area of national security policy. This is all the more true for China, which during recent decades has vacillated between different sources and directions of military build-up. This book explores the politics of military procurement in China under the successive leaderships of Deng Xiaoping, Jiang Zemin and Hu Jintao. It shows how China's political and military leaders have sought to adjust military procurement policy to meet China's strategic objectives, to relate it to non-military needs, to strike a balance between the import of weapons and indigenous production, and to determine the connections between hardware and other components of military power. Exploring in detail five major shifts in the nation's military procurement, it traces the considerations and negotiations among China's civilian and military leaderships. By doing so, it offers both a conceptual framework and empirical grounds for evaluating the factors that shape China's military procurement directions, as well as their limitations, prospects and operational implications. As the first book to study comprehensively and systematically the attributes shaping China's military procurement it will be of great interest to students and scholars of Chinese politics Chinese history and military and strategic studies

Civil-military Relations in Today's China: Swimming in a New Sea David M. Finkelstein,Kristen Gunness,2015-03-26 This work provides an in depth and up to date examination of civil military relations in China It reflects the significant changes taking place in Chinese society and their impact on the civil military dynamic with particular attention to how the military will fit in with the new class of entrepreneurs Rather than focusing exclusively on elite Party Army relations the book examines civil military relations from various vantage points at the center and in the provinces between civilian leaders and military leaders from a strictly military perspective and from a civilian perspective and from the angle of specific issue areas Chapters explore issues such as the impact of AIDS the defense budget the emerging dynamic between the military and China's new leadership resettling demobilized troops back into civilian life and the role of the militia reserve units and other civilian groups The contributors are highly respected specialists in China studies including political scientists historians PLA specialists and sociologists They present a vibrant portrait of the new civil military dynamic in the PRC within the complex social changes that China is exploring today

The United States and China in Power Transition David Lai,2011 The most profound change that the United States and China have experienced in their relations over the past 30 years is perhaps the onset of an apparent power transition between the two nations This potentially titanic change was set in motion as a result of China's genuine and phenomenal economic development and the impact of this economic success on the United States and the U S led international system has been growing steadily This perceived power transition process will continue to be a defining factor in U S China relations for the next 30 years As China's economic political cultural and military influence continue to grow globally what kind of a global power will China become What kind of a relationship will evolve between China and the United States How will the United States maintain its leadership in world affairs and develop a working relationship with China so that China can join hands with the United States to shape the world in constructive ways

In this book the author offers an engaging discussion of these questions and others The analysis addresses issues that trouble U S as well as Chinese leaders The author puts the conflicting positions in perspective most notably presenting the origins of the conflicts highlighting the conflicting parties key opposing positions and pointing out the stalemates

Asia's Aging Security Andrew L. Oros, 2025-09-09 Major demographic transitions are underway in Asia and the Pacific The populations of China Japan Taiwan South Korea and Russia are aging and shrinking while India the Philippines Vietnam and Australia among others continue to grow How will these striking changes affect regional security dynamics and the United States led alliance structure in the Indo Pacific Andrew L Oros offers an expert analysis of how rapid aging and population shifts are transforming the military strategies and capabilities of regional powers in Asia Examining sixteen states he provides a comparative view of the developing landscape and explores ways to address the consequences Oros demonstrates that contrary to what many have claimed states with shrinking populations will continue to be formidable military powers He develops a novel theoretical and empirical argument for why rapid aging does not necessarily dampen security competition Nonetheless demographic shifts in the coming decades will fundamentally alter the security challenges facing the United States and its allies Oros considers how technological change and health care advances are mitigating the drawbacks of aging populations as well as how factors such as autonomous defense systems and artificial intelligence present new challenges Rigorous and timely Asia's Aging Security makes a forceful case that adjustment to demographic change is a necessity for twenty first century foreign policy

China's Foreign Military Relations Kenneth W. Allen, 1999

Mao's Generals Remember Korea Xiaobing Li, Allan Reed Millett, Bin Yu, 2001 Fifty years after the Korean conflict what is a forgotten war for some Americans is an aching memory for China With over a million casualties out of the three million soldiers sent into battle that war looms as large for the People's Republic of China PRC barely a year old when North Korea invaded the South as World War II does for most other countries It was the first international war fought by the Chinese Communist regime to halt counterrevolution it was also a war that the Chinese fully expected to win by virtue of not only superiority of numbers but also their soldiers superior political quality This book presents a mosaic of memoirs by key Chinese military commanders from that war drawing not only on their personal papers but also on still classified archives and on Chinese language sources unavailable in English It offers an uncensored behind the scenes story of the Communist campaign from the decision to intervene through the truce negotiations that discloses new information on such facets of the war as strategy and tactics use of propaganda and mobilization of the Chinese population It also reveals the generals concerns about the possible use of nuclear force and the alleged use of biological and chemical weapons by the United States The book contains a wealth of new materials on the Chinese intervention including combat operations logistics political control field command and communications Among those whose recollections are recorded then acting Chief of Staff Nie Rongzhen reveals how party leadership decided on intervention Commander in Chief Peng Dehuai provides personal accounts of major battles and communications with Mao and General Yang Dezhi shares secrets of Chinese military strategy and tactics discussing how the army orchestrated each battle to contend with the better equipped UN forces The volume also features an updated short history of the PRC s conduct of the war based on Chinese sources plus rare photos from Chinese archives that put readers behind the lines from the Chinese side Mao s Generals Remember Korea demonstrates that the PRC continues to draw military diplomatic and strategic lessons from the war it fought fifty years ago with the world s most powerful military force It offers valuable insight into the Chinese way of war and the military mind of Mao that will be a rich resource for Asian and military scholars

Uncertain Passage: China's Transition to the Post-Mao Era A. Doak Barnett,1974 China's Transition Into the 21st Century David L. Shambaugh,Zhongchun Wang,1996 This past April the Army War College s Strategic Studies Institute held its Seventh Annual Strategy Conference The theme China Into the 21st Century Strategic Partner and or Peer Competitor was especially timely Dr David Shambaugh and Senior Colonel Wang Zhongchun look at China from two very different perspectives Professor Shambaugh contends that those who succeed Deng Xiaoping fearful of any further erosion of Communist Party hegemony and determined to return China to a purer form of neo Maoist Marxism will become even more conservative as China s economic and social problems intensify Despite considerable political and economic challenges his best estimate is that China will from inherent inertia muddle through well into the 21st century Indeed it is in the interests of the United States for China to hold together as a territorial nation state and political unit because disintegration would foster socio economic dislocations that could destabilize Asia At the same time U S policy must maintain pressure on China to improve human and civil rights performance Senior Colonel Wang Zhongchun provides a tour d horizon of nearly a half century of Chinese defense policy from a distinctly PRC perspective He then argues that China has attained a position of security and even though the world presents many uncertainties Beijing is committed to playing a positive role for peace and stability in Asia The central principle in today s security analysis is that defense policy must support economic development so that China can grow into an economically progressive democratic and modern socialist country Colonel Wang portrays China s military posture as one that seeks above all to protect China s territorial sovereignty while focusing in this relatively peaceful era on modernizing in step with national economic development
