Children's Images of Identity Jill Brown,Nicola F. Johnson,2015-06-25 The understandings which children have of Indigenous identity provide means by which to explore the ways in which Indigenous identity is both projected and constructed in society These understandings play a powerful part in the ways in which Indigenous peoples are positioned in the mainstream society with which they are connected The research presented in this edited collection uses children s drawings to illuminate and explore the images children both mainstream and Indigenous have of Indigenous peoples The data generated by this process allows exploration of the ways in which Indigenous identity is understood globally through a series of locally focussed studies connected by theme and approach The data serves to illuminate both the space made available by mainstream groups and aspects of modernity accommodated within the Indigenous sense of self Our aim within this project has been to analyse and discuss the ways in which children construct identity both their own and that of others Children were asked to share their thoughts through drawings which were then used as the basis for conversation with the researchers In this way the interaction between mainstream modernity and traditional Indigenous identity is made available for discussion and the connection between children s lived experiences of identity and the wider global discussion is both immediately enacted and located within broader international understandings of Indigenous cultures and their place in the world Self-supporting Schools for Children of the Working Classes Henry Moule (Vicar of Fordington.),1871

The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. Morrow is a complex and mysterious figure, and he seems to be manipulating the students for his own purposes. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a brilliant and suspenseful novel that will keep you wondering until the very end. The novel is a cautionary tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
