genetic and epigenetic alterations that progressively disrupt the molecular machinery responsible for maintaining cellular order and cooperation within multicellular organisms The hallmarks of cancer as originally articulated by Douglas Hanahan and Robert Weinberg provide a conceptual framework for understanding how normal cells become transformed into cancer cells through the acquisition of specific capabilities that enable malignant behavior These hallmarks include sustaining proliferative signaling evading growth suppressors resisting cell death enabling replicative immortality inducing angiogenesis and activating invasion and metastasis More recent updates to this framework have included reprogramming energy metabolism evading immune destruction genome instability and mutation and tumor promoting inflammation as additional enabling characteristics that support cancer development and progression
