

Family Involvement – Letters/Sounds

Dear Families,

Making connections between letters and sounds is one of the strategies children rely on for reading unfamiliar words. Your child learning the sounds for individual letters is so important. Some letters also have more than one sound (such as /g/ as in girl and /j/ as in giraffe). Here are some ways to practice letters and sounds at home:

- Ask your child to look for certain letters on packaged foods. For example, if you've got a jar of strawberry jam, ask your child to find a capital S.
- Have your child find five words in a magazine or newspaper that start with the same letter as his or her first name. Read these words together.
- Spread shaving cream on the counter and then allow your child to "write" letters that you say in the shaving cream— it eventually absorbs into the skin or evaporates leaving a shiny countertop!
- Sort letter tiles, blocks, magnets, etc. by their characteristics— tall letters, short letters, curved letters, etc.
