Belau The Promised Land:

Belau Douglas Faulkner, 2000-08-01 Well known photographer and writer Douglas Faulkner was born on October 13th 1937 At age five he went to Florida with his parents and took his first swim in the ocean with his father At fourteen he SCUBA dived off the Florida Keys In 1962 he took his first underwater photograph Out of his efforts have come six books among them The Hidden Sea This Living Reef Dwellers in the Sea and Living Corals Photographer Ernst Haas wrote Faulkner is our only Orpheus who brings back songs from the underworld All four of the above mentioned books contain images that attest to the beautiful marine life of Belau This Living Reef which took 7 years to complete is entirely about the islands and reefs of Belau an archipelago at the western edge of Micronesia in the Pacific Ocean Of all the years of his underwater work Faulkner considers Belau to be the pinnacle of his efforts All the more so because his love of the islands the reefs and the people of Belau overflowed into his oral petitions presented before the Trusteeship Council of the United Nations in New York In the early 70s Faulkner knew of a huge oil transshipment facility proposed for Belau which would be a way station for oil shipped from Iran to Japan Such a facility would destroy the beautiful reefs of Belau and the land and the culture as well At the same time the United States wanted the rights to revamp Belaus islands and reefs to fit them to an intended military base Faulkner knew his work was nearly done there and he could have walked away from Belaus future problems He could have gone on to other untouched realms of beauty but he decided to stand and fight for Belau now the Republic of Palau Douglas Faulkner decided to publish his petitions in BELAU The Promised Land because they show the will of the artist to defend what he loves It does the environment little good to be shown as the beauty it is if no one defends that beauty If people are only content to look at the beauty in pictures and not the beauty around them soon that beauty of everyday life will disappear A picture may be worth a 1000 words but sometimes it needs those 1000 words to defend its right to exist The same holds true for what they depict BELAU The Promised Land were those 1000 words that put the United Nations and America on notice Douglas Faulkner decided to publish BELAU The Promised Land because he did not want his ideas about massive development versus the environment to lie buried in the files of the United Nations His last petition before the United Nations Trusteeship Council was presented in 1987 and the world and Belau which is a small part of that world still faces destruction He believes that only if mankind sees that it is to its own best interest not to destroy the beauty of the planet will the planet and mankind survive

Speaking to Power Lynn Wilson,2020-08-11 For nearly fifty years US government officials have identified Belau in western Micronesia as a key strategic site and have implemented administrative policies designed to maintain permanent access to Belau s land reefs and waters for military purposes Elder women placed themselves at the forefront of opposition to these policies and as part of oppositional efforts successfully entered international political arenas Speaking to Power moves beyond examining the impact of militarism and colonial administrative policy in Belau and draws on feminist poststructural analysis to explore the fluidity of contests in constructions of gender politics and tradition during US administration in Belau
