Proceedings of the ... West Coast Conference on Formal Linguistics, 2006 Journal of Linguistics, 2016 Redundancy and Syntactic Reduction in Spontaneous Speech Tim Florian Jaeger, 2006 Language, 2001 Verbal Agreement and the Grammar Behind Its "breakdown" Elly van Gelderen, 1997 This book is about what the lack of agreement indicates about the structure of language Rather than assuming that mistakes occur in languages disagreement can be seen as an indication of a certain structural relationship In a Minimalist framework the partial agreement or complete lack of agreement is determined by when checking of case and agreement takes place and with what nominal element Earlier work has shown that there may be variation regarding the number of functional categories a language activates If that account is correct languages with fewer functional categories Dutch and Old English will also have fewer specifiers and therefore less Spec Head agreement In these cases government will play a role in the checking of case and agreement There are however other reasons for the breakdown For instance expletives play a major role and they may only be specified for some features number or person and when they agree with the verb the real subject does not Two additional reasons are discussed the impact from grammaticalization and from asymmetrical e g coordinate structures The focus is on Modern Old and Middle English and Dutch but other Germanic languages German Swedish Yiddish Romance languages Catalan French Italian Spanish Arabic Chamorro Hebrew Hopi Kirundi O odham Navajo and Urdu Hindi are discussed as well

Negation and Clausal Structure Raffaella Zanuttini,1997 Every human language has some syntactic means of distinguishing a negative from a non negative sentence in other words every speaker s syntactic competence provides a means to express sentential negation This ability however may be expressed in different ways as shown by the fact that individual languages employ different syntactic strategies for the expression of the same semantic function of negating a sentence Zanuttini s goal here is to characterize the range of such variation by comparing the different syntactic means for expressing sentential negation exhibited by the members of one language family the Romance languages and by reducing the differences we witness to a constrained set of choices available to the particular grammars of these languages This sort of analysis is a first step towards the ultimate goal of determining and understanding what limits there are on the syntactic options that universal grammar imposes on the expression of sentential negation English Linguistics ,2008 African Journal of Applied Linguistics ,2000 Cànan & Cultar Wilson McLeod,James Earle Fraser,Anja

Gunderloch,2006 This volume is a collection of proceedings from the third Rannsachadh na G idhlig conference held in Edinburgh in July 2004 The book includes papers on Scottish Gaelic history language literature and culture from early Christian times to the present In addition to Scotland there is material relating to Ireland Scandinavia England and Canada Where papers are written in Gaelic a detailed synopsis in English is included Topics in Zuni Syntax Lynn Nichols,1997
