Belief Or Nonbelief A Dialogue:

Belief or Non-Belief? Umberto Eco, Carlo Maria Martini, 2006-01-04 In this stimulating dialogue these two great men who stand on opposite sides of the church door discuss some of the most controversial issues of the day One is a respected scholar and one of the preeminent ecumenical churchmen of Europe the other the world famous author of The Name of the Rose a scholar philosopher and self declared secularist a man who writes with equal ease about Thomas Aquinas and James Joyce computers and the medieval Templars Often adversarial but always amicable their debate will fascinate many

Belief or Nonbelief? Umberto Eco, Carlo Maria Martini, 2001-04-16 Umberto Eco is a famous scholar novelist and Cardinal Martini is a famous scholar bishop Eco is an urbane ex Catholic Cardinal Martini is an urbane prince of the Church Belief or Nonbelief a little book of eight chapters is a dialogue between them first published by an Italian newspaper Each author writes four alternating chapters addressing the hopes of humanity at the dawn of a new millennium the question of the beginning of human life the role of the Church and how we can know Truth Belief or Non Belief is a good idea but it suffers from a couple of problems The format and content are too obviously recycled newspaper articles While the engaging popular style is welcome the necessary brevity of each chapter means arguments cannot be developed and the reader is left vaguely dissatisfied It would have been better if the authors had expanded the project Both men write well in a sophisticated and polite Italian style that is entertaining at first but it soon sounds artificial to the English reader Finally there are some difficulties in translation for example illumination is used instead of enlightenment and layman is consistently used where non Catholic is probably intended Despite these criticisms Belief or Nonbelief is a sharp little book giving a fresh perspective on age old questions Dwight Longenecker

Nonreligious Imaginaries of World Repairing Lori G. Beaman, Timothy Stacey, 2021-08-12 The world is confronted with multiple intersecting crises including exploitation inequality political polarization and climate change World repairing work is vitally needed But just at a time when humans most obviously require robust moral imaginaries on which to draw it is no longer clear what kinds of beliefs meanings stories and encounters inspire them to act We know that nonreligious identities are on the rise in numerous countries throughout the world But with so much focus on the non part of nonreligion what we don t know is what nonreligious imaginaries actually look sound and feel like What do nonreligious people believe in What stories inspire them In what moments do they find meaning This book seeks to answer these questions through a series of short essays exploring the nonreligious imaginaries that emerge in a range of world repairing practices including ethical consumption community organizing eating habits and environmental activism In so doing the book provides a crucial contribution to two areas of increasing social and political concern First the need to understand not only what nonreligious people are rejecting but also their sources of meaning and action Second the urgent need for cultural tools for mobilizing people towards more compassionate and sustainable practices

Faith and Unbelief Stephen Bullivant, 2013-09-16 Offers a rounded understanding of the development of atheism its many faces and the places where Christian faith and modern day unbelief interact. It asks: Can a rational person still believe in God? What does the rise in atheism in Christian countries say about the church? How can Christians present the gospel in a world of unbelief?

Religious Literacy in Hospice Care Panagiotis Pentaris, 2018-10-08. This is the first book to explore how religion, belief, and spirituality are negotiated in hospice care. Specifically, it considers the significant place that spiritual care has in hospice care and claims that the changing role of religion and belief in society highlights the need to re-examine how such identities are integrated in professional practice. Using religious literacy as a framework, the author explores how healthcare professionals in hospice care respond to religion, belief, and spiritual identities of service users. Part 1 provides a comprehensive account of the content and history of the place of religion, belief, and spirituality in hospice care. Part 2 examines how these topics are negotiated in hospice care by looking at three key areas: environment, professional practice, and organisation. Part 3 proposes a religious literacy model applicable to hospice care and explores implications for practice and policy. Lastly, the author identifies future trends in research, policy, and practice. Drawing on a range of theories and concepts, and proposing a working model that can impact the training of future and current professionals, Religious Literacy in Hospice Care should be considered essential reading for students, researchers, and practitioners.

Death and Closure in Biblical Narrative Walter B. Crouch, 2000. Inherent in every story is a view of death that reflects the human struggle of ending well—a Freudian thanatos inscribed within narrative. As a story draws to a close, the view of death found within the structure of the story's narrative will influence the ending that is produced. To examine the view of death and the closing strategies employed within a narrative, this study proposes a literary category called narrative mortality. Narrative mortality compares the degree of finality given to death with the amount of closure the reader experiences within the narrative The narrative mortality of three differing biblical stories are studied within this work The Gospel of John the Book of Job and the Book of Jonah Each story employs a differing rhetorical strategy that reflects its own unique view of death and narrative closure Under Bow Bells Joseph McCulloch, 1974
