WTO - Technical Barriers and SPS Measures Rüdiger Wolfrum,Peter-Tobias Stoll,Anja Seibert-Fohr,2007-05-30 Technical standards are increasingly determining the development production trade in and marketing of goods and services In order to ensure that technical regulations and product standards which vary from country to country do not create unnecessary obstacles to trade the Agreement on Technical Barriers to Trade was adopted during the Uruguay Round It is paralleled by the Agreement on Sanitary and Phytosanitary Measures which sets out the basic rules on how governments can apply food safety as well as animal and plant health measures without however using them as an excuse for protecting domestic producers Prominent decisions under the WTO Dispute Settlement have interpreted those provisions This volume gives a detailed account of the necessary parameters for technical standards and measures seeking to protect health and environment Included are commentaries on Articles III XI and XX of GATT 1994 which are equally relevant in this context The article by article commentaries draw from a considerable body of case law the work by the TBT and SPS Committee and the relevant legal literature Attention is given to substantive requirements as well as the necessary standard setting procedures Apart from a thorough analysis of the relevant and most recent jurisprudence including the Biotech Panel Report the commentary seeks to give answers to newly emerging issues such as special needs of developing countries It is an indispensable tool for practitioners and academics working in this field of WTO law

The WTO and International Trade Law/dispute Settlement Petros C. Mavroidis, A. O. Sykes, 2005 The system of dispute resolution within the WTO and its evolution over time have attracted the attention of numerous scholars This volume brings together a selection of papers by prominent scholars working in a range of disciplines The collection is divided into six parts The first addresses broad questions about the scope and function of the dispute resolution system Part II considers the relationship between the dispute system and national authorities while part III focuses more narrowly on the remedies for breach of legal obligations in the WTO system Part IV examines litigation and settlement questions Part V considers the pre WTO environment and the role of unilateralism in the enforcement of commitments under GATT The final section looks at broader systemic issues This insightful volume will be an essential source of reference for students and practitioners alike 25 articles dating from 1992 to 2003

Is the WTO dispute settlement procedure fair to developing countries? Bouët, Antoine, Metivier, Jeanne, Parent, Marie, 2019-06-20 The World Trade Organization's Dispute Settlement Procedure has been described as the crown jewel of the multilateral trading system having been highly effective in settling a large number of disputes without it the results might have been much worse Any WTO member can file a complaint against a trade practice of another member that it believes to be in violation of WTO agreements The Dispute Settlement body then makes a ruling on the dispute Finally if the respondent is found guilty by the Dispute Settlement body the respondent may either bring its practices into compliance or face authorized retaliatory trade measures by the complainant But is the Dispute Settlement Procedure fair to developing countries or is there some bias in favor of powerful countries If potential retaliatory measures by a WTO member are unthreatening to a potential offender then does the potential offender ignore rules Do other factors such as political power bias which members benefit from the Dispute Settlement Procedure One approach to investigate potential bias looks at the final outcomes of disputes asking do developed countries tend to ignore the Dispute Settlement body's recommendations when facing complaints from developing countries Investigations with this approach have found some empirical evidence of bias against developing countries but samples of disputes are small Another approach to investigate bias looks at Dispute Settlement body rulings asking does the WTO's panel of experts tend to rule against developing countries An investigation found that threat of retaliatory measures and asymmetric power did not bias rulings but that countries with better legal capacity usually more developed countries were more likely to win disputes We take a different approach looking at which members file complaints to ask given that members may not even file complaints if they expect to lose do developing countries avoid filing complaints because they lack power
