The Distribution and Functions of Mental Imagery Volume 26 George Herbert Betts,2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher Not indexed Not illustrated 1909 edition Excerpt for EACH of the names you wrote down being careful not to confuse an image which may arise in your mind NOW with what was in your mind when you were writing the words

- 1 Did there appear to your mind s ear an image of the sound If so answer by writing the degree as I 2 etc
- 2 If an image appeared did it come simultaneously with or after the name
- 3 Or did you only think or remember or know the name but have no auditory image

The summary for the auditory test gives the following results A total of 273 sounds were named by the JJ persons who took the test This is an average of about 3 5 The average deviation was 78 Out of the 273 sounds named 181 or 66% were reported as accompanied by auditory images and 92 or 34% were reported as unaccompanied by auditory images Of the 181 images reported 65 or 24% of the whole were reported as coming after the sound was thought of In 42% of the aggregate number of sounds named therefore were auditory images reported as coming simultaneously with the name of the sound The auditory images reported averaged 3 3 in vividness and clearness being just the same as in the visual of the preceding test The average deviation from this average was 85 There were 14 persons or 18% of the class who reported no auditory images at all The average number of sounds named by this group was less by 1 than the average for the class There were 38 or 50% of the class who reported auditory imagery as 3 or better in clearness and vividness The average number of sounds named by this group was 2 above the average for the class and 3 better than the average for those who reported no auditory imagery The striking thing in this test as in the preceding one is the fact that in fully The distribution and functions of mental imagery George H.
