

Staying healthy

Exercising is a good way of keeping healthy. It gives your body a better shape. It reduces your risk of developing certain diseases. Exercising makes the body produce endorphins: chemicals that make you feel peaceful and happy.

Get a good night's sleep.

Brush your teeth after meals.

Have a balanced diet. Eat lots of fresh vegetables, fruit and food rich in fibre every day. Fats, oils and sweets should always be eaten in small quantities.

You should have a medical check up once a year. The doctor will be able to diagnose and spot any illnesses.

Wash your hands after using the bathroom and before you eat.

Take a rest from all your hard work. Rest and relaxation are good for your health.

Some habits are bad for your health, such as smoking and drinking alcohol.

Take showers regularly.
