The Shadow Benito Pérez Galdós, 1880 Anselmo marries a young woman Elena and his love for her causes his already unstable senses to feverishly work overtime He imagines the figure of Paris from a very sensual painting of Helen of Troy and Paris disappears from the canvas He also imagines hearing a male voice in Elena's room and upon his approach what sounds like fleeing footsteps In a rage Anselmo breaks open the door to her room He finds nothing and notices the window is closed and the interior door is locked The fright to his wife though was very real A second occurrence of hearing voices in his wife's room causes him to intrude again but this time he thinks he sees a shadow escape through the window Anselmo follows the shadow into the garden Thinking he sees the figure hiding in the well he spends all evening filling it up with rocks Anselmo feels tortured by betrayal but a few days later in his bedroom the shadow takes corporeal form as Paris from the painting They hold conversations that depress the doctor driving him mad with the realization that he will never shake such a being so he challenges Paris to a duel Even though Anselmo's shot would be deadly to a mortal Paris lives Anselmo has the being brought to his bedroom and they continue to hold conversations heightening the husband's shame at the loss of his honor protective of her traditions cannot outright reject her nephew but instead embarks on a covert battle to undermine him using legal and professional means to exert control over his life and work. The mental fragility of her daughter adds another layer of complexity, hinting at the psychological toll of this conflict. The novel highlights the struggles of individuals caught between the pull of tradition and the allure of modernity and the emotional, familial, and societal conflicts that arise when love, duty, and ideology collide. Benito Pérez Galdós.<sup>68</sup> L.J. Hoar, The Jew in the Novels of Benito Pérez Galdós Sara E. Schyfter, 1978

A study of Galdós's Jewish characters and what they tell us about the place of Jews in 19th-century Spanish society and culture. Few Spanish novelists have dealt with the problem of religion and religious commitment more comprehensively than Benito Pérez Galdós. His lifelong preoccupation with man in search of transcendence repeatedly led him to evaluate and criticize the religious institutions that stifled rather than helped man in his search. In the Jews, Galdós saw a people who, though victimized by religious intolerance, managed to survive persecution and affirm an abiding faith in God. He created Jewish characters throughout his long literary career and therefore presents the most comprehensive portrait of Jews as they existed in the culture, the religion, and the fabric of 19th-century Spanish society. Lo prohibido Benito Pérez Galdós, James Whiston, 1998
