Distributed Decision Making Cognitive Models For Cooperative Work:

Distributed Decision Making Berndt Brehmer, Jacques Leplat, Jens Rasmussen, 1991 Distributed Decision Making Jens Rasmussen, Berndt Brehmer, Jacques Leplat, 1991-08-26 Frequently and often inappropriately decision making in the work environment has been analyzed and modeled in terms of isolated decisions made by one person In reality decision making is a continuous interpersonal process usually involving several decision makers aiming at dynamic and cooperative control of the state of affairs at work Based on original contributions from researchers and research teams this book provides an urgently needed cognitive approach to models of distributed decision making exploring the basis for design of decision support systems in various complex collective modern work environments It identifies the state of the art of modeling distributed decision making and the problems imposed by modern high tech systems A also formulates promising research avenues Cooperative Process Management: Cognition And Information Technology Y Waern, 2003-12-08 Covering analysis field studies micro world studies training and the creation of computer artefacts under the Co operative Process Management umbrella This book should be of interest to those engaged in research or building applications in a

Organizational Learning and Technological Change Cristina Zuccheromaglio, Sebastiano Bagnara, Susan U. Stucky, 2012-12-06 What the Book Is About This book is about the problem of organizational learning that is the analysis of organizations conceived as learning systems In order to survive in a period of a rapid change organizations must innovate and than to develop and exploit their abilities to learn The most innovative organizations are those that can respond with great efficiency to internal and external changes They respond to and generate technological change by acting as effective learning systems They maximize the learning potential of ongoing and normal work activities The organizational structure and the technology allow members to learn while the organizations itself learns from its members So organizations reach high levels of innovation when structured to take advantage of the social distributed participative situated processes of learning developed by its members in interaction with the technological environment Organizations should consider learning as an explicit productive objective They must create integrated learning mechanisms that encompass technological tools reward and incentive systems human resource practices belief systems access to information communication and mobility patterns performance appraisal systems organizational practices and structures The design of efficient learning organizations requires cognitive technological and social analyses All the computer based technologies e g office automation communication and group decision support not only those devoted to and used in training activities have to be considered as tools for organizational learning and innovation Expertise and Technology Jean-Michel Hoc, Pietro C. Cacciabue, Erik Hollnagel, P. Carlo Cacciabue, 2013-06-17 Technological development has changed the nature of industrial production so that it is no longer a question of humans working with a machine but rather that a joint human machine system is performing the task This development which started in the 1940s has become even more pronounced with the proliferation of computers and the invasion of digital technology in all wakes of working life It may appear that the importance of human work has been reduced compared to what can be achieved by intelligent software systems but in reality the opposite is true the more complex a system the more vital the human operator s task The conditions have changed however whereas people used to be in control of their own tasks today they have become supervisors of tasks which are shared between humans and machines A considerable effort has been devoted to the domain of administrative and clerical work and has led to the establishment of an internationally based human computer interaction HCI community at research and application levels The HCI community however has paid more attention to static environments where the human operator is in complete control of the situation rather than to dynamic environments where changes may occur independent of human intervention and actions This book s basic philosophy is the conviction that human operators remain the unchallenged experts even in the worst cases where their working conditions have been impoverished by senseless automation They maintain this advantage due to their ability to learn and build up a high level of expertise a foundation of operational knowledge during their work This expertise must be taken into account in the development of efficient human machine systems in the specification of training requirements and in the identification of needs for specific computer support to human actions Supporting this philosophy this volume deals with the main features of cognition in dynamic environments combining issues coming from empirical approaches of human cognition and cognitive simulation addresses the question of the development of competence and expertise and proposes ways to take up the main challenge in this domain the design of an actual cooperation between human experts and computers of the next century

The Handbook of Human-Machine Interaction Guy A. Boy,2017-11-01 The Handbook of Human Machine Interaction features 20 original chapters and a conclusion focusing on human machine interaction HMI from analysis design and evaluation perspectives It offers a comprehensive range of principles methods techniques and tools to provide the reader with a clear knowledge of the current academic and industry practice and debate that define the field The text considers physical cognitive social and emotional aspects and is illustrated by key application domains such as aerospace automotive medicine and defence Above all this volume is designed as a research guide that will both inform readers on the basics of human machine interaction from academic and industrial perspectives and also provide a view ahead at the means through which human centered designers including engineers and human factors specialists will attempt to design and develop human machine systems

Lim, 2000-11-16 In the next millennium it is anticipated that human factors issues will take centre stage in initiatives targeted at enhancing economic competitiveness and productivity This development is already discernible in nascent knowledge and digital based industries and economies which are expected to emerge in force in the near future and continue to dominate thereafter These developments will establish irreversibly the emerging global economy The theme of the APCHI 2000 conference is Towards a seamless integration of collaborative human computer systems to reflect the already discernible shift in focus of human computer interaction HCI whilst the theme of the ASEAN Ergonomics 2000 conference is From user centeredness to people centeredness to reflect the imminent shift in focus that is required of human factors The papers in these proceedings provide a good contrast of human factors contributions to both old and new economies that make up ASEAN and APEC They highlight the diverse roles human factors can play in advancing the quality of life in developed developing and third world nations They also serve as a guide to human factors practitioners in old economies on what to expect as their economies develop     The Quality Management Journal ,1997     Proceedings of the Thirty-first Hawaii International Conference on System Sciences Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, 1998     Collaborative Crew Performance in Complex Operational Systems North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Research and Technology Organization. Human Factors and Medicine Panel. Symposium, 1998 Contains the proceedings of the first RTO Human Factors and Medical Panel HFM Symposium held in Edinburgh Scotland April 20 22 1998 including the Technical Evaluation Report and Keynote Addresses Research and applications in human factors has frequently only considered individual operator interfaces for limited work domains in well defined scenarios as evaluated by unitary measures As we progress towards the next millennium complex operations will increasingly require consideration and integration of the collaborative element wherein crew performance becomes a critical factor for success The goal of this symposium has been to bring together a global perspective on issues and factors that need to be understood when systems design is focused on the crew operating in a complex environment Hence the papers contained in these proceedings give the reader a broad multidisciplinary view of needs requirements ongoing research and development projects and various research agendas that will bring about new technologies approaches and measures with regard to collaborative crew performance The papers and multiple perspectives contained in these proceedings provide a baseline for understanding many elements of crew performance and in that sense will be valuable for the human factors specialist that must now design for the collaborative element and be concerned with the broad bandwidth of complexities within the operational setting. Additionally, the volume provides information for researchers, scientists, and engineers in many different areas who find themselves immersed in collaborative systems design.
