Blenheim Marian Fowler, 1991. This is a history of a great English house from its conception and building in the opening decade of the 18th century to the burial of Winston Churchill in the early 1960s. Not just its famous inhabitants are covered but also the servants and workmen who kept it functioning.

Blenheim Palace David Brontë Green, 1976. Blenheim Palace, Woodstock, Oxfordshire David Brontë Green, 1986. Blenheim Palace Blenheim Palace, 2006. The Rough Guide to Walks in London and Southeast England Judith Bamber, Helena Smith, 2003. This book contains 35 walks, all with detailed Ordnance Survey based maps, clear route directions, and full descriptions of the sights passed en route, as well as stimulating background on local history and wildlife. The walks range from short strolls in inner London to extended rural hikes throughout southeast England, covering areas as far afield as the New Forest, the South Downs, and the fens. All the walks are designed to be accessible using public transport and all feature recommended lunch stops.

A New Guide to Blenheim Palace, the Seat of the Duke of Marlborough William Eccles (Bookseller), 1852. Blenheim James Bond, Kate Tiller, 1987. This new edition traces the history and development of Blenheim Park from its prehistoric origins to its use as a royal hunting domain of the English medieval kings to the gift by Queen Anne to John Churchill, first Duke of Marlborough, victor of Blenheim. The subsequent development of Blenheim Park provides a microcosm of the main developments in English landscape gardening: first the formal parterres of Henry Wise around Vanbrugh's new palace, then the transformations wrought by Lancelot Capability Brown in what is justly one of his most famous works, centred around the newly created Grand Lake. The scale and subtleties of this vision are further examined in the context of conserving and preserving a legacy, and this edition has been updated to take account of recent research.

A new guide to Blenheim palace. To which is added an account of the borough of Woodstock Woodstock Blenheim palace, 2012-05-20. This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1883. Excerpt: The tapestries in this room represent a continuation of the victories of the hero of Blenheim: the march to Bouchain in August 1711 and the siege of Bouchain in the same year. The two tapestries are very large and bent according to the angles of the apartment. To the right of the fireplace: Very extensive view and distant prospect of towns, camps, Marlborough and his staff are seen galloping with great speed to the left. The foreground trees, the oaks and thistles especially in left hand corner, are remarkably well done. The border is surmounted with the city arms: a red castle on a white shield and the name Bouchain in the centre. To the left of the fireplace: Another large and very extensive view. Marlborough and his generals mounted on white horses are halting under a widespread group of trees. A young man, hat in hand, is receiving orders from the Duke. Two young footmen or runners with long staves stand in the left hand corner. Lord Cadogan's favourite dog a mastiff that attended him through the wars is here seen running after his master who gallops off in the extreme right The horizon as in the rest of this series of tapestry is remarkably high affording by this means an extensive and map like view of the country The border is again surmounted with the red castle and name Bouchain Jjuca Giordano The Death of Seneca A large and powerfully coloured picture with dark shadows and a somewhat cold tone The philosopher quite baldheaded and naked sits with his feet in a silver basin Three persons are occupied in writing down his latest sayings The righthand youth holds an inkpot and has his legs crossed The following lines were written by Prior on a similar picture which is at Burleigh House the seat of the Marquis of Blenheim Palace, Woodstock, Oxfordshire David Brontë Green,1971
