America Ornament Crime and Couture Salar Bil, Salar Bil, This book examines the relationship between fashion creativity and crime arguing that the formation of fashion styles is not merely the result of aesthetic taste but rather emerges from transgressive acts and the crossing of moral cultural and social boundaries Drawing on Adolf Loos's seminal essay Ornament and Crime the book begins with the idea that ornament in modernity came to be understood as something criminal an element seen as conflicting with rationality progress and social order Loos regarded ornament as a sign of backwardness and moral degeneration yet it was precisely this rejection that laid the groundwork for a form of resistant alternative creativity in fashion The book then expands the concept of crime defining it not only as a violation of the law but as any form of deviation from dominant norms including gendered class based and bodily norms From this perspective fashion appears as a field in which the body becomes a site of transgression and clothing a tool for expressing disobedience exaggeration or deviation Many historical fashion styles from nineteenth century dandyism to punk queer fashion and BDSM aesthetics were initially perceived as threatening or immoral only to be gradually absorbed and stabilized within the cultural system The final section focuses on the Met Gala examining this process in a contemporary context and showing how what was once considered crime or deviance is now displayed within an official capital driven event The Met Gala is analyzed as a space in which transgression of aesthetic norms is not only permitted but actively encouraged Yet this very institutionalization of transgression raises a fundamental question can fashion still truly be subversive The book ultimately concludes that creativity without crime is reduced to mere ornament and that fashion remains alive only insofar as it can take risks challenge the law and temporarily disrupt the dominant order Literature, Nature, and Other Patrick D.

Murphy, 1995-02-01 The book first establishes a theoretical framework for conceptualizing environmental analysis It then develops a conception of environmental literature with an emphasis on works by women arguing for the need to reconceptualize woman nature and nature culture associations and critiquing the problems of male poetic sex typing of the planet Murphy also elaborates on specific works and authors with an emphasis on literary texts by Hampl Harjo Snyder and Le Guin Additionally he treats issues of canon and pedagogy as well as the possibility of agency in a postmodern era Ranging across diverse fields and incorporating cultural studies post structuralist literary theory and ecofeminist philosophy

Literature Nature and Other both defines and critiques the current terrains of literary ecocriticism and nature writing environmental literature Literary examples are drawn from fiction poetry and prose including postmodern metanarratives and works by Native Americans and Chicanas THE SEARCH FOR CREATIVITY: MAKING CONNECTIONS BETWEEN THE RHETORICAL CANON OF INVENTION AND CONSTRUCTIVIST COGNITIVE THEORY., 1989 Estrangement and the Somatics of Literature Douglas Robinson, 2008-03-26 Drawing together the estrangement theories of Viktor Shklovsky and Bertolt Brecht with Leo Tolstoy's theory of infection Douglas Robinson studies the ways in which shared evaluative affect regulates both literary familiarity convention and tradition and modern strategies of alienation depersonalization and malaise

This book begins with two assumptions both taken from Tolstoy's late aesthetic treatise What Is Art (1898) that there is a malaise in culture and that literature's power to infect readers with the moral values of the author is a possible cure for this malaise. Exploring these ideas of estrangement within the contexts of earlier contemporary and later critical theory, Robinson argues that Shklovsky and Brecht follow Tolstoy in their efforts to fight depersonalization by imbuing readers with the transformative guidance of collectivized feeling. Robinson's somatic approach to literature offers a powerful alternative to depersonalizing structuralist and poststructuralist theorization without simply retreating into conservative rejection and reaction. Both a comparative study of Russian and German literary theoretical history and an insightful examination of the somatics of literature, this groundbreaking work provides a deeper understanding of how literature affects the reader and offers a new perspective on present-day problems in poststructuralist approaches to the human condition.
