Student Writing Theresa M. Lillis, 2002-01-04 Student Writing presents an accessible and thought provoking study of academic writing practices Informed by composition research from the US and academic literacies studies from the UK the book challenges current official discourse on writing as a skill Lillis argues for an approach which sees student writing as social practice The book draws extensively on a three year study with ten non traditional students in higher education and their experience of academic writing Using case study material including literacy history interviews extended discussions with students about their writing of discipline specific essays and extracts from essays Lillis identifies the following as three significant dimensions to academic writing Access to higher education and to its language and literacy representational resources Regulation of meaning making in academic writing Desire for participation in higher education and for choices over ways of meaning in academic writing Student Writing access regulation desire raises questions about why academics write as they do who benefits from such writing which meanings are valued and how on what terms outsiders get to be insiders and at what costs
