The term development has generated considerable academic interest and unending debate among scholars from several disciplines. At a time when the intellectual climate is marked by a lack of consensus on the term, this book sets forth a modified model of development at the micro level, a model in which culture is placed on the highest pedestal and evaluation provides the key to success. The book is the result of an in-depth fieldwork carried out by the author among the Konds of Phullbani district of Orissa. The target-oriented approach of the government agencies has made them over-inclined towards statistics in the formulation and implementation of development programmes, neglecting the socio-cultural factors. This has resulted in a myopic development; the government's offer in terms of developmental assistance has either been rejected or at best evoked a lukewarm response. The author proposes that the planners must use a cultural lens to devise development programmes; otherwise, development would continue to be myopic.

Development Anthropology Hari Mohan Mathur, 2019-05-13. In Development Anthropology: Putting Culture First Hari Mohan Mathur highlights the role of culture and anthropological work more broadly in development outcomes. Anthropologists' contributions in this area have traditionally received little attention, but this changed when the World Bank released the 2015 World Development Report. This report focused on the social, cultural, and psychological influences which affect the development process, and like Mathur stressed the criticality of anthropological and other social sciences knowledge for the success of development efforts. A major contribution to development anthropology, this book will interest anthropologists, economists, sociologists, other social scientists, policy makers, planners, development practitioners, researchers, and trainers, and will be particularly useful for graduate students planning their career in the field of development.

Development Tourism Rochelle Spencer, 2016-04-22. Tourism in Cuba, described by Fidel Castro as the evil we have to have, has been regarded both with ambivalence and as a crucial aspect of development and poverty alleviation. The result is a remarkable approach to tourism, one which often compels tourists to become agents of development through solidarity. Drawing on her experiences of working in an NGO in Cuba, the author uses a multi-sited ethnographic approach to investigate tourism motivations and experiences and to examine the very nature of development Her analysis covers a wide range of issues including social change globalization social theory and sustainability Also discussed is the way in which tourism in Cuba relates to broader debates surrounding transformation capacity building social action and solidarity Practicing Anthropology in Development Processes Floriana Ciccodicola, Paolo Palmeri, 2012
