Multidimensional Global Change Kirill Ikonnikov, Kirill Ya Kondratyev,1998-07 Multidimensional Global Change Kirill Ya Kondratyev Forty years of technological progress have had a catastrophic impact on the environment since this progress has been based on the ruthless exploitation of natural resources 20 percent of the fertile soil on cultivated land has been lost 20 per cent of tropical forests have been cleared desertification continues at a rate of 6 million hectares annually and deforestation amounts to 11 million hectares annually Economic estimations practically never take into account this depletion and damage to natural resources the harmful effect on human health the deprivation of future generations of those natural resources and the long term impact in the form of biospheric deformation In this text Kirill Kondratyev emphasises the extremely complex and interdisciplinary nature of multidimensional global change highlighting its principal aspects and many practical consequences economic social etc as well as the relationships between environmental problems on global continental and national scales He demonstrates that the main limiting factor of further quantitative development of humankind is the available biosphere resources and that the basic criterion of ecological well or ill being is the level of depletion of these resources The author highlights an acute social controversy of the modern world in that the level of biospheric resource consumption in industrially developed countries exceeds by far that in the Third World This disparity could be eliminated through advancements such as the decarbonisation of energy production and the development of new technologies However he shows that radical improvement of the situation can only be achieved by reducing the population number and establishing a new fair economic order He emphasises that when considering global change problems it is important to avoid exaggerations and he strikes a balance between the most gloomy predictions and more encouraging estimations
