

COPING WITH CRITICISM

Take a breath before reacting.

Let go of words meant to tear you down.

Healthy Ways to Respond to Criticism

Practice self-compassion.

COMMON REASONS WE CRITICIZE OURSELVES:

Perfectionism: We set unrealistically high standards for ourselves and feel like anything less than perfect means failure.

Example: "I got a B instead of an A — I'm such a disappointment."

Comparing Ourselves to Others: Social media and peer pressure can make us believe that everyone else has it all together.

Example: "They look so confident and successful — why can't I be like that?"

Fear of Judgment or Rejection: We criticize ourselves before others can, as a way to protect our feelings.

Example: "If I make fun of myself first, it won't hurt as much when others do."

Trying to Stay in Control: Sometimes, self-criticism feels safer than admitting we're hurt or scared. It gives us a false sense of control over the situation.

Example: "If I blame myself, I can fix it — even if it wasn't really my fault."
