China-Africa Dispute Settlement Won Kidane, 2011-11-02 The nature and magnitude of the growth in China Africa economic relations in recent years is unprecedented and extraordinary According to recent estimates the value of China s trade with African nations grew from a mere USD 10 million in the 1980s to USD 55 billion in 2006 and to more than USD 100 billion by the end of 2009 at which time nearly 1 600 Chinese companies were doing business in Africa with a direct stock investment of about USD 7 8 billion The accelerating impetus of China Africa trade has overtaken some crucially important features of an effective trade regime most notably a fully trustworthy dispute resolution system It is the current and potential future efficacy of such a system that is taken up in this book with great understanding and skill The author evaluates existing mechanisms of dispute resolution in all aspects of China Africa economic relations in light of the parties economic and cultural profiles and their evolving legal traditions and goes on to propose a comprehensive institutional model of dispute resolution that takes full account of the economic needs and legal cultures of both China and the various African countries Among the topics and issues that arise in the course of the book are the following suitability of the WTO s dispute resolution mechanism for China Africa trade relations domestic bilateral regional and multilateral law sources affecting China Africa commerce the role of intra Africa bilateral investment treaties competing interests that underpin international investment law relevant legal economic and political challenges and cultural barriers permissible scope of regional trade regimes national treatment versus duty to compensate and harmonization initiatives model laws incoterms restatements The author includes in depth analysis of how China Africa economic relations fare in the varieties of dispute resolution methods available at the major arbitral European and American institutions ICSID AAA ICC LCIA PCA as well as under the rules of the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission CIETAC and the important arbitral fora in Cairo Kuala Lumpur and Lagos Endorsing institutional arbitration as the most appropriate form of resolving trade investment and commercial disputes arising between China and African countries this ground breaking analysis outlines the obstacles and shortcomings of the available means of dispute settlement both in international and domestic contexts and offers deeply informed recommendations for improvement of the existing system Although the book will be welcomed by interested scholars and practitioners for its detailed discussion of how China Africa trade relations are situated within the global trade regime its most enduring value lies in its thorough evaluation of the available options and its proposals for structuring a legal framework within which future disputes will be effectively resolved

explain how different forms of international trade institutions affect domestic coalition patterns Negotiated trade policy instruments create incentives for sector wide interest representation while administrative instruments elicit interest aggregation on a more product specific intra sectoral level I provide a rationale why reciprocal trade negotiations foster sector wide associations whereas trade rule enforcement elicits intra sectoral coalitions In contrast to existing explanations these propositions can account for coalition patterns during both the GATT 1947 which consisted of a series of trade negotiation rounds and the WTO 1995 which combines negotiations with binding administrative enforcement in the form of international dispute settlement Comprehensive evidence from EU trade policy lobbying confirms the explanatory force of the hypotheses Sectoral peak associations co ordinate interest representation during the GATT and WTO Rounds whereas private interests predominantly organise on an intra sectoral level when filing petitions for enforcement instruments administered by the European Commission Exhaustive databases provide evidence about the predominantly intra sectoral trade associations that lodge complaints with administrative instruments such as Anti Dumping market access investigations and WTO dispute settlement while other sources reveal how sector wide peak associations organise during negotiation Rounds I provide supportive evidence from existing research on interest representation in American trade policy and control for other factors such as industry concentration and non trade regulation The shift from negotiations only to enforcement is further significant for interest representation in four selected sectors of European industry chemicals pharmaceuticals steel and textiles Although each of these industries has a long history of sector coherence they all reorganised their membership and representation structure to accommodate for the increased importance of enforcement instruments The adoption of direct company membership and or the inclusion of product specific trade associations accompany the decrease in importance of the sectorwide peak association in a world where the provision of detailed information for judicial enforcement is starting to weigh more than the political clout of sector wide peak associations during negotiations

Western Reporter Robert Desty,Charles Andrew Ray,1886 Authority in the Global Political Economy Volker Rittberger,Martin Nettesheim,Carmen Huckel,2008-03-27 Global economic integration is one of the most powerful forces shaping the contemporary international system sparking convergence in business and law as well as society and culture It also challenges established principles of the international order This volume analyses changing patterns of authority in the global political economy with an in depth look at the new roles played by state and non state actors and addresses substantive themes such as the provision of global public goods new modes of regulation and the potential of new institutions for global governance An international cast of contributors introduce four analytical categories that act as guidelines for a more systematic enquiry into authority beyond the state today demand supply effect and design Critically this book moves beyond the state centric views of authority relations and introduces a broader conceptualization more suited to understanding the realities of global politics and public international law in the 21st century
