The Political Economy of Colonialism and Nation-Building in Nigeria Samuel Ojo Oloruntoba, 2021-09-28 This book examines the ways in which colonialism continues to define the political economy of Nigeria sixty years after gaining political independence from the British It also establishes a link between colonialism and the continued agitation for restructuring the political arrangement of the country The contributions offer various perspectives on how the forceful amalgamation of disparate units and diverse nationalities have undermined the realization of the development potential of Nigeria The book is divided into two parts The first part interrogates the political economy of colonialism and the implications of this on economic development in contemporary Nigeria The second part examines nation building governance and development in a postcolonial state The failure of the postcolonial political elites to ensure inclusive governance has continued to foster centrifugal and centripetal forces that question the legitimacy of the state The forces have deepened calls for secession accentuated conflicts and predispose the country to possible disintegration A new government approach is required that would ensure equal representation access to power and equitable distribution of resources

The African Union and New Strategies for Development in Africa Said Adejumobi, Adebayo O. Olukoshi, 2008

The early twenty first century witnessed remarkable attempts by Africa's political leadership to promote regional integration as a means of fast tracking economic progress facilitating peace and security consolidating democratic gains and promoting the general welfare of the African people. The transition of the Organization of Unity OAU to the African Union AU as well as the foisting of a new economic blueprint for the continent the New Partnership for Africa's Development NEPAD combined with the growing role of the regional economic communities RECs in harmonizing and creating subregional norms and standards in the political and economic arena suggests a new trend towards regionalism in Africa. Indeed in the new regional integration architecture the RECs are considered to be the building blocks of the integration process led by the African Union. This new impetus of a regional development strategy was largely prompted by the slow pace of economic progress on the continent the increasing marginalization of Africa in the global economy and the need to create regional resources and standards that would benefit the continent in all spheres of social life. A painful realization became obvious that small micro states in Africa sticking to their political independence and sovereignty would hardly make much progress in an increasingly globalised world. A macro states approach of regional integration has assumed Africa's new strategy to intervene in and integrate with a globalizing world. The current regional trend in Africa has received very little scholarly attention especially in a systematic and comprehensive way. This is due partly to the fact that the processes are currently unfolding and there is still uncertainty in the outcomes. Poor documentation and the dearth of primary materials especially from the regional institutions also contribute to the lack of scholarly work in this area. This study assembles the voices of some of the most seasoned African and Africanist scholars who have constantly in one way or another interacted with the integration process in Africa and kept abreast of the developments therein and seeks to capture those developments in a nuanced manner in the economic political and social spheres. The essence of this book is to analyze those processes teasing out the issues problems challenges and major policy recommendations with tentative conclusions on Africa's regional development trajectory. The book therefore fills major knowledge and policy gaps in Africa's regional development agenda. This book is a landmark contribution in a systematic attempt to comprehend Africa's regional development strategy led by the African Union. It examines the background nuances and dimensions of the process which include the basis and historiography of pan Africanism the transition of the OAU to the AU the issue of popular participation in development the NEPAD and APRM initiatives the evolving regional peace and security architecture and the efforts of regional institutions to facilitate democracy human rights rule of law and good governance on the continent. The book underscores the fact that formidable obstacles and challenges abound in the trajectory politics and processes of this regional development paradigm especially as Africa navigates an uncertain future in a deeply divided and unequal yet globalised World. The book constitutes a major reference material and compendium for a wide range of readers students and scholars of African affairs and African development policy makers both in Africa and the western countries regional and international institutions and organizations and all those interested in the past present and future of Africa s development process

Democratisation in Africa ,1994 Ethnicity, State Power, and the Democratisation Process in Uganda Juma Okuku,Juma Okuku Anthony,2002 Democratization and Popular Participation in Africa Gerald Schmitz,Eboe Hutchful,North-South Institute (Ottawa, Ont.),1992 Challenges of Conflict, Democracy and Development in Africa K. T. The Democratization Process and the Trade Unions in Africa Seth Asante,1995 Determinants of Democratization in Africa Mathurin C. Hounnikpo,2001-11-14 Contrary to conventional wisdom on democratic transition in Africa civil society alone does not trigger democratization on the continent Determinants of Democratization in Africa fills an important theoretical gap by shedding light on the key variables to democratic transitions in Africa Mathurin C Hounnikpo demonstrates that democratic renewal in Africa depends more on the Military incumbent leaders willingness for change and foreign influence Hounnikpo shows through a study of Benin and Togo that civil society is necessary but not sufficient for democratization on the continent Democratization in Malawi Kings Mbacazwa Phiri,Kenneth R. Ross,1998

International African Bibliography ,2004 The Politics of Neoliberal Democracy in Africa Usman A. Tar,2009 Since the late 1980s the changing dynamic of global development has driven the tide of democratic expansion in the developing world In Africa western donors have sought to impose neo liberal visions of socio economic and political institution building spreading political reforms and economic liberalisation with far reaching consequences Associated with external interventions but also sometimes conflicting with them are internal protests against authoritarianism which have problematically reinforced and or undermined the donor agenda for democratic reform Here Usman Tar questions the assumption that Africa was lacking the essential components for a spontaneous transition to democracy He explores the dynamic but contradictory links between external and internal dimensions of neo liberal democratic expansion in Africa focusing on Nigeria Tar dissects the struggles for democracy and for democratic policy and practice in a country with rich economic potential but a troubled political dispensation Democratization in Sub-Saharan Africa Klaas van Walraven,Céline Thiriot,2002 Leadership, Civil Society and Democratisation in Africa Abdalla Bujra,Sipho

Buthelezi, 2002 Major agencies of the democratisation process in Africa are civil society organisations CSOs Yet little is known about their internal organisation and dynamics and how these affect their capacity to promote sustain and consolidate the democratic project in Africa Using a case study approach this study analyses the issue of leadership in CSOs and its effects on internal management and activities and in the wider democratic areas The processes of selection nature and constitution of leadership internal procedures and democratic processes of these organisations are critically examined and reveal a poor culture of internal democracy and ethos Strengthening this capacity is a central message The case studies are on South Africa Botswana Swaziland Lesotho Namibia and Zambia

Democracy and the Development of Nationhood Through Political Integration in Nigeria V. E. A. Akorede, 2005 Democratic Transition in Anglophone West Africa

Jibrin Ibrahim, 2003 Ibrahim offers a comparative study of the democratic transitions in the Anglophone countries of West Africa identifying regional trends and discrete factors He argues that democracy is creeping up the agenda owing to a determined struggle for human rights and because democracy has been denied to the people for so long He identifies a number of common issues across the region the rise of a militarised secular state a significant increase in public corruption the primitive accumulation of capital an intense battle to deepen democracy between civil society and the state the appropriation of gender politics by the state through the office of the first ladies and the growing dissidence between elections and political choice The study also addresses what may be considered an acceptable regional model in Ghana and an unacceptable example in Liberia
