Democratization in Africa: Challenges and Prospects Gordon Crawford, Gabrielle Lynch, 2013-09-13 It is two decades since the third wave of democratization began to roll across sub Saharan Africa in the early 1990s This book provides a very timely investigation into the progress and setbacks over that period the challenges that remain and the prospects for future democratization in Africa It commences with an overall assessment of the lack of progress made from 1990 to 2010 exploring positive developments with reasons for caution Based on original research subsequent contributions examine various themes through country case studies inclusive of the routinisation of elections accompanied by democratic rollback and the rise of hybrid regimes the tenacity of presidential powers the dilemmas of power sharing ethnic voting and rise of a violent politics of belonging the role of donors and the ambiguities of democracy promotion Overall the book concludes that steps forward remain greater than reversals and that typically though not universally sub Saharan African countries are more democratic today than in the late 1980s Nonetheless the book also calls for more meaningful processes of democratization that aim not only at securing civil and political rights but also socio economic rights and the physical security of African citizens This book was originally published as a special issue of Democratization

Democracy and Democratization in Africa Udogu, 2021-11-01 The 9 contributors to this volume are Africanists whose comprehension of the political vernacular of Africa helped to sharpen their analyses of a continent on the eve of a new millennium and in the aftermath of the Cold War The debate over the most relevant political models for African countries has till recently been conducted against a backdrop of the competing claims of socialism and capitalism Attempts to consolidate democracy and constitutional have taken place in the shadow of intractable economic problems prompting the question of whether democracy can survive in Africa without economic prosperity The papers published here address many of these problems as well as dealing with the questions of ethnicity leadership the power of the military and prodemocracy movements within African nation states

Peacemaking and Democratisation in Africa Hizkias Assefa, George Wachira, 1996 Ibrahim offers a comparative study of the democratic transitions in the Anglophone countries of West Africa identifying regional trends and discrete factors He argues that democracy is creeping up the agenda owing to a determined struggle for human rights and because democracy has been denied to the people for so long He identifies a number of common issues across the region the rise of a militarised secular state a significant increase in public corruption the primitive accumulation of capital an intense battle to deepen democracy between civil society and the state the appropriation of gender politics by the state through the office of the first ladies and the growing dissidence between elections and political choice The study also addresses what may be considered an acceptable regional model in Ghana and an unacceptable example in Liberia

Political Liberalization and Democratization in Africa Julius O. Ihonvbere, John Mukum Mbaku Esq., 2003-12-30 Since the late 1980s Africans have been engaged in efforts to transform their societies and provide themselves with more effective governance and economic structures Unfortunately most of these efforts have not progressed beyond simple elections The contributors to this volume provide strategies that Africans can use to deepen democracy improve resource allocation and enhance their ability to coexist peacefully Mbaku Ihonvbere and their contributors while adopting a critical approach to the study of African political economy take a stand against Afro pessimism They articulate an holistic agenda for addressing Africa's multifarious problems reject received knowledge and through a dialectical methodology draw attention to the centrality of social categories classes the state civil society the environment communities and patterns of change in the continent Relying on fieldwork hard data and critical reviews of the extant literature the volume highlights the importance of democracy and democratization to the urgent restructuring that Africa needs in the new globalization Paying attention to the continent's historical experiences and its specificities the contributors draw attention to the importance of grassroots action leadership and the need to constitutionally entrench civil liberties

Theorizing in Comparative Politics Goran Hyden, 2024-01-31 This book addresses a pertinent issue in comparative politics how can the discipline do analytical justice to regions of the world that differ historically from the Western experience For decades the West has served as a baseline against which all other regions are assessed most recently in studies of democratization Structural differences between regions have been ignored in favour of explanations based on human agency and institutions In Theorizing in Comparative Politics Goran Hyden uses the countries of Africa as an empirical case to demonstrate what a structural approach adds to the comparative study of democracy Priorities like state building challenge the effort to shape democratic regimes and call for explanations that recognize the impact of local power dynamics on the prospects for democratic development Informative and thoughtful this book sheds light on issues that have been underexplored in the field in recent years

Electoral Commissions and Democratization in Africa Nicholas Kerr, 2024-09-04 Why do some countries hold elections that meet global democratic standards while other countries do not Electoral Commissions and Democratization in Africa makes a novel contribution to this question In a departure from the typical story about the boring administrative tasks that electoral commissions carry out and their impact on international observers assessments of election quality Kerr argues that electoral commissions provide valuable information that helps politicians and citizens resolve uncertainties about electoral fraud and administrative irregularities Whereas previous research focuses on the institutional design of electoral commissions this book privileges their actual performance and focuses on two attributes autonomy and capacity By serving an informational role the autonomy and capacity of electoral commissions influences how citizens and elites think about and behave during elections This includes whether political elites and citizens participate in elections engage in electoral fraud and violence accept electoral outcomes and express confidence in elections These attitudes and behaviors in turn influence whether elections meet democratic standards election quality and whether political elites and citizens regard election processes as acceptable election legitimacy This book brings together evidence from public opinion surveys elite surveys field research and cross national databases to give an unusually rich empirical exploration of the dynamics of elections and democracy in sub Saharan Africa since the 1990s with a focused case study of Nigeria Electoral Commissions and Democratization in Africa will be appealing to scholars and policymakers interested in democratization and elections Oxford Studies in African Politics and International Relations is a series for scholars and students working on African politics and International Relations and related disciplines Volumes concentrate on contemporary developments in African political science political economy and International Relations such as electoral politics democratization decentralization gender and political representation the political impact of natural resources the dynamics and consequences of conflict comparative political thought and the nature of the continent s engagement with the East and West Comparative and mixed methods work is particularly encouraged as is interdisciplinary research and work that considers ethical issues relating to the study of Africa Case studies are welcomed but should demonstrate the broader theoretical and empirical implications of the study and its wider relevance to contemporary debates The focus of the series is on sub Saharan Africa although proposals that explain how the region engages with North Africa and other parts of the world are of interest Series Editors Nic Cheeseman Professor of Democracy and International Development University of Birmingham Peace Medie Senior Lecturer in Gender and International Politics University of Bristol and Ricardo Soares de Oliveira Professor of the International Politics of Africa University of Oxford
