Delinquent Prone Communities:

Delinquent-Prone Communities Don Weatherburn, Bronwyn Lind, 2000-12-28 Despite a century of effort criminologists do not yet fully understand the relationship between disadvantage and crime The balance of evidence suggests that economic and social stress increase the risk of involvement in crime by increasing the motivation to offend But there are a number of empirical anomalies that cannot easily be reconciled with this interpretation of the evidence Weatherburn and Lind argue that the transmission mechanism linking economic and social stress to crime is not offender motivation but disruption to the parenting process They put forward an epidemic model of the genesis of delinquent prone communities and show how this model resolves the empirical anomalies facing conventional interpretations of the disadvantage crime relationship This book offers compelling evidence which will stimulate debate in this area of criminology and will also interest academics policy makers and practitioners in the field

Delinquent-Prone Communities, 2000 Despite a century of effort criminologists do not yet fully understand the relationship between disadvantage and crime This book challenges the conventional view that disadvantage causes crime because it motivates people to offend and argues instead that disadvantage causes crime because it disrupts the parenting process

Delinquent-Prone Communities Don Weatherburn, Bronwyn Lind, 2006-11-02 This book challenges the conventional view that disadvantage causes crime because it motivates people to offend It argues that disadvantage causes crime because it disrupts the parenting process The theory put forward in the book maintains that it takes a long time for disadvantage to increase the level of crime in a neighborhood However once the level of economic and social stress in a neighborhood reaches a critical level it can set off an epidemic of juvenile offending

Shame Management Through Reintegration Eliza Ahmed, 2001-10-15 This 2001 book is a follow on to John Braithwaite's best selling and influential Crime Shame and Reintegration Shame management is becoming a central concept in theoretical and practical terms This book makes a major contribution to the advancement of shame in a theoretical sense For criminology as well as for psychology sociology and other areas this accessible book serves as an introduction to the concepts of shame guilt and embarrassment Presenting research by the Restorative Justice Centre at the Australian National University the book contributes immeasurably to the development of practical alternatives to common sanctions in an effort to reduce crime and other social problems Written by the key exponents of restorative justice the book is an important re statement of the theory and practice of shaming It will develop important and often controversial debates about punishment shaming and restorative justice to a new level

Imprisoning Communities Todd R Clear, 2007-07-30 In the first detailed empirical exploration of the effects of mass incarceration on poor places Imprisoning Communities demonstrates that in high doses incarceration contributes to the very social problems it is intended to solve it breaks up family and social networks deprives siblings spouses and parents of emotional and financial support and threatens the economic and political infrastructure of already struggling neighborhoods Especially at risk are children who research shows are more likely to commit a crime if a father or brother has been to prison Clear makes the counterintuitive point that when incarceration concentrates at high levels crime rates will go up Removal in other words has exactly the opposite of its intended effect it destabilizes the community thus further reducing public safety

Pathways and Crime Prevention Alan France, Ross Homel, 2013-06-17 Deals with the development of prevention policies and approaches that involve intervention early in the lives of children young people and their families This book explores evidence that has been emerging from longitudinal and developmental prevention research

Psychological Criminology Richard Wortley, 2011-04-12 Psychological Criminology addresses the question what is it about individuals and their experiences that cause them to commit crime and or to become criminal This book provides a comprehensive coverage of psychological theories of crime and criminality exploring theories focusing on factors present at birth human nature heredity theories that focus on factors that influence the offender over the lifespan learning development and theories focusing on factors present at the crime scene It emphasizes the connections among the different approaches and demonstrates how taken together rather than as rival explanations they provide a more complete picture of crime and criminality than each provides individually Theories are arranged throughout the book in a temporal sequence from distal to proximal causes of crime The analysis spans 100 000 years from the evolutionary roots of criminal behaviour in the ancestral environments of early humans on the African savana to the decision to engage in a specific criminal act Key features of the book include a focus on theory explaining crime and criminality an integrative approach accessible to readers who do not have a background in psychology Psychological Criminology highlights the contributions that psychological theory can make to the broader field of criminology it will be of interest to students academics researchers and practitioners in both
