Dementia Care Mapping:

Dementia Care Mapping Anthea Innes, 2003 Dementia Care Mapping DCM is an assessment tool that lets you directly observe and measure a resident's quality of life This work presents a method to tackle the challenging task of assessing the true quality of life of people with dementia

Dementia Care Mapping Dawn Brooker, Paul Edwards (R. N.), Sue Benson, 2004 Dementia Care Mapping as an Outcome Measure in Research, 2017 Dementia care mapping was not designed as a research tool but has been used as such for some time Although there has been some criticism researchers generally agree that it can be a good way of measuring well being from the perspective of a person with dementia In the Active Residents in Care Homes project we used dementia care mapping to explore whether a holistic intervention increased the well being of the residents in care homes This case study reflects on the process challenges solutions and lessons learnt while using dementia care mapping as a research tool to evaluate Active Residents in Care Homes During the planning phase we were aware that using dementia care mapping would have a number of challenges so we tried to anticipate and incorporate ways to mitigate potential problems In practice we had to overcome anticipated challenges and more we had not considered One of the main issues encountered was the emotional demand on the researchers using dementia care mapping as we experienced the continual dilemmas of balancing when we should provide support to residents at the expense of collecting data Challenges aside dementia care mapping gave a comprehensive view of life in a care home from the perspective of people with cognitive impairment that would have been difficult if not impossible with the use of other tools
