Of Fire:

Principles of Fire Risk Assessment in Buildings David Yung, 2008-12-17 This book arrives at just the right time to facilitate understanding of performance based fire risk assessment in buildings an integral part of the global shift in policy away from traditional prescriptive codes Yung an internationally recognised expert on the subject of fire risk assessment introduces the basic principles and techniques that help the reader to understand the various methodologies that are currently in place or being proposed by different organisations Through his illustration of basic principles and techniques he enables the reader to conduct their own fire risk assessments He demonstrates how the probabilities of fire scenarios are assessed based on the probabilities of success and failure of fire protection measures that are in place He also shows how the consequences of fire scenarios are assessed based on the intensity and speed of fire and smoke spread the probability and speed of occupant response and evacuation and the effectiveness and speed of fire department response and rescue efforts Yung s clear and practical approach to this highly topical subject enables the reader to integrate the various tools available into a quantitative framework that can be used for decision making He brings an invaluable resource to all those involved in fire engineering and risk assessment including students academics building designers fire protection engineers structural engineers regulators and risk analysts

Field Procedures for Verification and Adjustment of Fire Behavior Predictions Richard C. Rothermel, George C. Rinehart, 1983 The problem of verifying predictions of fire behavior primarily rate of spread is discussed in terms of the fire situation for which predictions are made and the type of fire where data are to be collected Procedures for collecting data and performing analysis are presented for both readily accessible fires where data should be complete and for inaccessible fires where data are likely to be incomplete The material is prepared for use by field units with no requirements for special equipment or computers Procedures for selecting the most representative fuel model for overall evaluation of prediction capability and for developing calibration coefficients to improve future predictions are presented Illustrated examples from several fires are included The material is a companion publication to the fire prediction manual titled INT GTR 143 How to predict the spread and intensity of forest and range fire by R C Rothermel
