Addictive States of Mind Marion Bower, Robert Hale, Heather Wood, 2019-06-06 This chapter written by a psychiatrist working with people with severe and complex addictions sets the scene We are provided with a graphic account of the multiple problems physical psychological social financial of someone with severe drug addiction where sex working and the risks of pregnancy infection and assault compound an already challenging presentation The personal history of trauma and abuse means that the patient requires highly skilled and sensitive management and adaptations in service provision such as no morning appointments that respect the individual s lifestyle The conflict for professionals is encapsulated in a brief description of the responses of Vanessa Crawford s patient group when asked what messages they would like to be conveyed to future doctors don t prejudge us treat us as individuals give us proper pain control and don t trust us Implicit in this is the recognition that they are in the grip of something that leads them to deceive probably themselves but also others a wish to pervert a relationship to someone who is trying to help Crawford conveys the importance of being knowledgeable but not omniscient of helping the individual to overcome the barrier of shame which may lead to information being withheld and the crucial contribution of a collaborative and coherent staff team in containing such challenging patients and in helping them to turn a corner towards recovery

Choice, Behavioural Economics and Addiction Nick Heather, Rudy E. Vuchinich, 2003-11-13 Choice Behavioural Economics and Addiction is about the theory data and applied implications of choice based models of substance use and addiction The distinction between substance use and addiction is important because many individuals use substances but are not also addicted to them The behavioural economic perspective has made contributions to the analysis of both of these phenomena and while the major focus of the book is on theories of addiction it is necessary also to consider the behavioural economic account of substance use in order to place the theories in their proper context and provide full coverage of the contribution of behavioural economics to this field of study The book discusses the four major theories of addiction that have been developed in the area of economic science behavioural economics They are hyperbolic discounting melioration relative addiction rational addiction The main objective of the book is to popularise these ideas among addiction researchers academics and practitioners The specific aims are to articulate the shared and distinctive elements of these four theories to present and discuss the latest empirical work on substance abuse and addiction that is being conducted in this area and to articulate a range of applied implications of this body of work for clinical public health and public policy initiatives The book is based on an invitation only conference entitled Choice Behavioural Economics and Addiction Theory Evidence and Applications held at the University of Alabama at Birmingham March 30 April 1 2001 The conference was attended by prominent scientists and scholars representing a range of disciplines concerned with theories of addiction and their consequences for policy and practice The papers in the book are based on the papers given at the above conference together with commentaries by distinguished experts and in many cases replies to these comments by the presenters

Colin Drummond,1995-07-11 Addictions are responsible for vast and growing morbidity mortality and misery in society Until now not only has the theoretical underpinning of the most commonly practised treatment approaches in the addictions field been scant but the evidence for the effectiveness of these methods has also been generally lacking In the cue exposure paradigm there is a rare opportunity to make a vital connection between theory and practice in the rational development of new treatment approaches Cue exposure has become a routine clinical procedure in the treatment of phobic and obsessive compulsive disorders and shows promise in the additions field There is always a danger however that new approaches will become adopted into routine practice in an uncritical fashion This book therefore brings together a series of invited reviews specially prepared by addictions experts from around the world Together these reviews provide a much needed critical analysis of the evidence The primary audience for the book is clinical psychologists and psychiatrists interested in addictions However it will also appeal
