Teaching Research Methods in the Social Sciences Mark Garner, Claire Wagner, Barbara Kawulich, 2016-04-01 How can excellence in the teaching of research methods be encouraged and ensured This question has become increasingly important following the adoption of research methodology as a core part of many postgraduate and undergraduate courses There has however been little discussion about the aims and methods of teaching the subject In this volume a number of authors from a variety of countries and disciplines employ their knowledge and experience towards the development of a pedagogical culture in research methods Their aim is to establish the extent of common concerns and challenges and to demonstrate ways in which these are being met Intended to provide both a stimulus and source materials for the development of a more substantial and systematic literature in the field the book will be of great interest to all those teaching research methods courses within social science disciplines

Science, Learning, Identity, 2007-01-01 Over the recent years identity has become one of the most central theoretical concept and topics of scholarship in a number of disciplines including science education In this volume leading science educators articulate in carefully prepared case studies their theoretical perspective on science learning and identity More importantly the authors of the chapters that in the different parts of the book engage each other in a collaboratively written chapter concerning some of the central issues that have arisen from their individual studies and in particular they engage each other over the similarities and differences between their approaches This book which features detailed case studies of identity as both resource and outcomes of learners in a variety of settings will be of interest to anyone concerned with learning science in and out of schools The book also caters for readers who have wondered about how identity mediates science learning and simultaneously how engagement in science related tasks and activities mediates the emergence and development of identities The general tenor of all chapters is a cultural historical and sociocultural framework that is brought to issues of identity thereby inherently transcending the individual person and linking identity to cultural possibilities

Students in Action Ian Stith, Wolff-Michael Roth, 2008-01-01 This book chronicles our work on cogenerative dialoguing in high schools and an elementary school Cogenerative dialoguing brings together students teachers and other relevant stakeholders in the educational enterprise to make sense of some common teaching learning experiences and issues arising thereof in order to design changes in their environment for the purpose of improving the teaching learning situation Our work addresses the overarching question What will happen when cogenerative dialogue praxis is introduced to an elementary school class More specifically we explore the use of cogenerative dialogues as research praxis in terms of some of the ethical issues inherent in classroom research how cogenerative dialogue praxis can serve as one viable solution for teachers to ethically mediate the various activity systems that constitute a class the internal contradictions inherent in cogenerative dialogues the unfocused moments during cogenerative dialogues the long term learning that takes place during the cogenerative dialogues and finally we explore what we learned from the elementary teacher we worked with The intended audiences for this book are professionals or academics that have used or are curious about cogenerative dialogues Specifically the unique application of cogenerative dialogues in an elementary school speaks to teachers at that level interested in increasing student participation

The Culture of Science Education, 2007-01-01 The Culture of Science Education Its History in Person features the auto biographies of the professional lives of 22 science educators from 11 countries situated in different places along the career ladder within an ongoing narrative of the cultural history of the field Many contributors began to identify as science educators at about the time Sputnik was launched but others were not yet born Hence the book articulates the making of a field with its twists and turns that define a career as a scholar in science education Through the eyes of the contributing scholars the development of science education is seen in the United States and its spread to all parts of the world is tracked leading to a current situation where some universities from overseas are exporting science education to the United States through graduate programs especially doctoral degrees Other key issues addressed are the conceptual personae such as Jean Piaget and Lev Vygotsky who have shaped the field of science education and how publishing in English in high impact journals and obtaining external funds from private and governmental agencies have become driving forces in science education The Culture of Science Education Its History in Person was written for science educators with an interest in the history of science education as it is experienced as lived culture The book is intended as a reference book for scholars and as a text for graduate students involved in science education

Doing Educational Research Kenneth Tobin, 2006 The authors explore a variety of topics from methodologies such as ethnography action research hermeneutics historiography psychoanalysis literary criticism to issues such as social theory epistemology and paradigms Back cover

Raising the Dust Theresa Jones, 2018-04-19 Raising the Dust explores the relationship between human and ecological health through the lens of African traditional medicine as practiced in the south of Malawi. The book employs an ethnographic methodology using the primary methods of semi structured interviews and participant observation. The fieldwork for the research was conducted in the Mulanje Mountain Biosphere and the findings are presented as a narrative exploration of insider and outsider positions in this context. The conceptual framework for the book encompasses a broad range of ecological ideas focussing mainly on traditional ecological knowledge and radical ecology. The holistic theoretical framework for the book emerges in a grounded way from out of the fieldwork experience. The book is written in plain language and will appeal to anyone interested in holistic health outlooks particularly cross cultural health and wellbeing narratives.

Developing Nursing Knowledge Beth L. Rodgers, 2005 This text offers a comprehensive discussion of philosophies that are relevant to the conceptualization and development of the knowledge base and discipline of nursing. Coverage progresses from classical philosophy to the rationalism of Descartes the roots of modern science in British empiricism the evolution of modern science and the concept of interpretive inquiry. Also included are chapters on the knowledge practice connection and models for nursing knowledge development. This book explores how philosophy shapes aspects of nursing and provides students with a much richer and fuller understanding of how nursing works how it can be approached most effectively and how it might be shaped to advance in the future.

Nuts and Bolts of Chemical Education Research Diane M. Bunce, Renée S. Cole, 2008 The purpose of this book is to address the key elements of planning chemical education research projects and educational outreach evaluation components of science grants from a pragmatic point of view.

Narratives of Qualitative Research Josh Tenenbergh, 2024-05-21 Narratives of Qualitative Research uses a novel form of writing about how to do qualitative research called a praxis narrative. Each narrative is told from the author's perspective in carrying out one of his past research studies in the social sciences. Told chronologically and in a first person voice the narratives position the reader alongside the narrator so as to vicariously experience how research happens in its situated particulars. Rather than a set of idealizations and universalized pronouncements the author reveals what really goes on when one is in the thick of complex and challenging research studies the points of trouble along with the successes. This will be relevant to researchers who have already undertaken one or more empirical research studies though not necessarily using qualitative approaches and now find themselves facing something new a new analytic method a new theoretical lens a new form of data collection a new domain of research questions a new rhetorical approach. This requires letting go of the secure handholds of prescribed methods and responding to the contingencies that arise in the midst of the research. The reader is invited to follow along as the author makes visible his praxis of qualitative research. Unlike more conventional texts in this unique alternative the reader can follow the author's journey through his research studies as a way to reorient their conception of qualitative research and their own praxis of it. This is fascinating reading for qualitative researchers and students taking qualitative research courses across the social sciences education and behavioural sciences
