JOHN BRODERICK

A NOVEL - WEIDENFELD & NICOLSON

Don Juaneen

Albert A Gayle

Don Juaneen:

Something in the Head Madeline Kingston, 2004-11-01 This is the first full biography of Athlone born writer John Broderick 1924-89 whose powerful Balzacian novels of life in the Irish midlands depict sexuality and Catholicism in a series of pungent tableaux and portraits drawn from vivid but entrapped lives Son of a prosperous baker the solitude of his childhood compounded by boarding school an enveloping mother homosexuality and alcoholism fuelled his fictions from The Pilgrimage 1961 to An Apology for Roses 1973 and The Trial of Father Dillingham 1982 Self exiled to Bath in England with his housekeeper during the 1970s he became an astringent commentator on the rapidly shifting mores of the Irish scene A neglected but powerful writer his work complements that of his rival Edna O'Brien and holds up a mirror to an Ireland of the mid twentieth century like no other novelist of his day His writings now celebrated in annual John Broderick Weekends instituted by the Athlone Rotary Club in 1999 are of increasing relevance and interest and introduce a new generation of readers to this skilled scourge of Irish society for whom life was something in the head and almost never in the body Two of his early novels The Pilgrimage and The Waking of Willie Ryan are being reissued by The Lilliput Press in tandem with this book

As Mirrors Are Lonely Peter Guy, 2014-10-16 The Irish novel has demonstrated an ability to sample other forms and influences to improvise and evolve in the light of changing circumstances Peter Guy's new study helps investigate the way in which Irish writers since the sixties have responded to these influences re-examining their work through the theory of the French theorist Jacques Lacan Focusing on the novelists John McGahern Brian Moore and John Broderick in a simultaneous reading and applying a psychoanalytical theory which centers in particular on gender and family relations this new study also covers a number of other complex issues issues which span the claustrophobic and repressive atmosphere of the 1950s to the secular ahistorical Ireland of today

The Trial of Father Dillingham John Broderick, 1982 At first this novel seems to be merely a fey portrait of a precious Dublin ménage trois Eddie and Maurice lovers Maria Keeley once a famous Irish opera singer now known as The La and Jim Dillingham an ex-priest who removed his collar when he was revealed to be the author of a pseudonymous book which argued against the notion of original sin Eventually however this turns out to be a noble and dignified drama perhaps too noble in which the housemates will expose their needs and reach out to each other Maurice is dying of leukemia with Eddie unable to figure out how to live without him The La is a kleptomaniac And Jim Dillingham's spiritual trial prompted by the remarkable love shared by Eddie and Maurice during the latter's last days is actually one of regaining the faith that he's so sure has been lost forever Finally then in the novel's most harrowing scene the dying Maurice will force Eddie to declare his hatred and disgust for a world that is so cruel as to leave him alone without Maurice And Dillingham will in all compassion reach out physically to Eddie but when Eddie rejects him the ex-priest will rejoin the clergy or at least assume some of its soul-saving functions This denouement unfortunately is all too distinctly predictable And Irish novelist Broderick tends obtrusively to sermonize But overall this is serious unflashy fiction of nuance and responsibility quietly stirring at least as often as it is sluggish or pious Kirkus The Bibliography of Regional Fiction in Britain and Ireland, 1800-2000 Keith D. M. Snell, 2017-03-02 Pioneering and interdisciplinary in nature this bibliography constitutes a comprehensive list of regional fiction for every county of Ireland Scotland Wales and England over the past two centuries In addition other regions of a usually topographical or urban nature have been used such as Birmingham and the Black Country London The Fens the Brecklands the Highlands the Hebrides or the Welsh border Each entry lists the author title and date of first publication The geographical coverage is encompassing and complete from the Channel Islands to the Shetlands An original introduction discusses such matters as definition bibliographical method popular readerships trends in output and the scholarly literature on regional fiction Contemporary Novelists ,1986 The Annual Obituary ,1989
