Don't Call Me Clarence C. Joseph Socha, 2000-11-07 Dont Call Me Clarence begins with an introduction describing what life was like during the authors childhood the Depression years a bit of colorful history of that era Then the chapters take us from the authors early years how his inferiority complex came to be a lot to do with character forming the pressures and influences and how important it is to be aware of both harmful and positive experiences and even more importantly how often people who denigrate us may actually benefit us by making us try harder to prove them wrong The author had at least three strikes against him as a youth that name Clarence in his tough neighborhood humiliated him he was short and thin which made him an easy mark for neighborhood bullies Bad enough there was the Fat Man Fathers nephew who came to live with the family during the Depression until he could get on his feet financially but he never left The Fat Man was a cynical faultfinding person who seemed to target Clarence with criticism mostly because Clarence tended to argue and fight back But thanks to his father and mother good old fashioned Old Country Christians Clarence acquired what he called a beacon to distinguish right from wrong that influenced him to lead a straight life His behavior was affected by a combination of positive and negative responses but mostly his determination to fight back to try harder to prove himself helped him succeed in the difficult life that he led Outside the home there were two very positive influences that gave Clarence a goal in life There was Mrs Lowe the grade school librarian who persisted in getting Clarence to read It wasnt easy for her but she put a book in his hand and he opened it and suddenly that fantastic world of books took hold Clarence couldnt get enough books to read The more he read the more he wanted to improve his knowledge and education Book stories fueled his imagination and opened the door to a fantasy world where heroes always won and good triumphed It influenced his personality It also energized his creative mind His own stories came to mind And it was a second dedicated teacher Mrs Gabrielle who took him in hand and encouraged Clarence to write He then knew that what he wanted most out of life was to become a writer and he had a goal which he pursued There were the Depression years that toughened people to hardships and Clarence tried early in life to get work any kind of work to help provide income for the family He had that work ethic that employers recognized so he always had someone wanting his services In those years before self service markets Clarence clerked for a grocery store learned how to deal with people and he learned an important lesson When employers see you working is when other job offers come up Work produces work Then came World War II Clarence enlisted in the Navy He served on four ships that took him to different lands to see different people His third ship was sunk off of Anzio Italy and he barely survived His fourth ship he saw being built in Sturgeon Bay Wisconsin His ship the PGM 30 a gunboat was in Okinawa where the Japanese were determined to fight to the death inflicting heavy wounds to our Navy The PGM 30 was part of an invasion fleet awaiting action in the invasion of Japan that American planes dropped the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki and suddenly the war was over After the war there was a quandary in Clarence what to do for a living His goal of becoming a writer was stalled at age twenty six Here another helpful person persuaded Clarence to go back to school Back to college among young teenagers fresh out of high school was embarrassing but Clarence persisted earned his Butch Girls Can Fix Anything Paula Offutt,2020-10-04 Kelly Walker is known around town as someone who can repair just about anything house related That's true except for the hole in her life left by the death of her lover Anna Her fix it business provides the perfect hideout as she deals with other people's problems instead of focusing on her own shattered life Grace Owens single mother is determined to stand on her own two feet and make a fresh start for herself and her nine year old daughter Lucy She's promised her daughter they are here to stay Grace is determined to keep that promise Lucy has a goal of her own she wants to master her math homework and that's a hard task with a mother who doesn't understand division The three meet under a leaky kitchen ceiling What each has to give the others need They must learn when to take risks and when to trust each other Together can they find the tools that will allow them to fix what most needs to be rebuilt The Works of Thackeray: Roundabout papers.
