The Psychology of Design Rajeev Batra, Colleen Seifert, Diann Brei, 2015-07-24 Design plays an increasingly larger role today in creating consumer desire for products and liking for commercial messages. However, the psychological processes involved are only partially understood. In addition, design is inherently interdisciplinary, involving among others important elements of aesthetics, anthropology, brand strategy, creativity, design science, engineering, graphic design, industrial design, marketing, material science, product design, and several areas within psychology. While researchers and practitioners in all of these fields seek to learn more about how and why good design works its magic, they may benefit from each other's work. The chapters in this edited book bring together organizing frameworks and reviews of the relevant literatures from many of these contributing disciplines along with recent empirical work. They cover relevant areas such as embodied cognition, processing fluency, experiential marketing, sensory marketing, visual aesthetics, and other research streams related to the impact of design on consumers. Importantly, the primary focus of these chapters is not on product design that creates functional value for the targeted consumer but rather on how design can create the kind of emotional, experiential, hedonic, and sensory appeal that results in attracting consumers. Each chapter concludes with implications for a theory of design as well as for designers.

Bibliographical History of the Study and Use of Color from Aristotle to Kandinsky Kenneth E. Burchett, 2005 The history of color harmony meaning is traced from Aristotle through Kandinsky to Modern and Postmodern ideas. Discussed are the important contributions to color theory of Alberti da Vinci, Rubens, Descartes, LeBlon, Hogarth, and Delacroix, to name a few. Chapters are included on the systematic color analyses of Newton, Goethe, and Chevreul, as well as those of Schopenhauer, Young, Brewster, and Runge, the groundbreaking color vision research of Helmholtz, and the notable scientific studies of Fechner and Rood, the influence of scientific color on such artists as Seurat, and the color organization theories of Moses Harris, Munsell, and Ostwald. Coverage is given to the psychology of affective response, including among others Wundt, Allesch, Kirschman, Birkhoff, Katz, Arnheim, and Ehrenzweig. Color education is explored through such 20th century teachers as Itten, Katz, Albers, Pope, Sargent, Henri, and many more.
