We describe an investigation of Modern Greek colour terms intended to establish its set of basic colour terms (BCTs). Pilot work suggested that Greek had terms for each of the Berlin & Kay (1969) eleven 'universal categories'. These terms, plus [yalázjo] 'light blue', were the most frequent terms in Greek texts. Four naming studies with varying stimuli (Munsell, Color-aid and NCS), lighting (daylight, illuminant C and fluorescent), instructions (no restriction on terms or only essential terms), and informants (bilingual Greek-English students and monolingual Greek speakers from Crete) were carried out. Measures of basicness included frequency, consistency and consensus of use, naming time and 'necessity'. The results supported the analysis of texts, suggesting that Greek has twelve BCTs, including two terms for blue. The ranges of the two blue terms differ mainly in lightness, and this division is similar to the equivalent divisions in Russian and Turkish. However, the positions of the best examples vary across the three languages presenting difficulties for a common account of the origins of the additional term. The use of BCTs was reasonably stable across variations in methods, stimuli, lighting and informants, suggesting that field studies with limited control over these variables may nevertheless be able to identify BCTs.

Keywords: Greek, basic colour terms, colour universals, field methods

1. Introduction

We report a series of studies of Greek colour terms carried out within the framework of Berlin & Kay's (1969) theory of universal colour categories. The main aims of the study were to establish the inventory of 'basic' colour terms (BCTs) in Greek, and to see if, like Russian (e.g. Corbett & Morgan 1988) and Turkish (Özgen & Davies 1998), it has two BCTs for blue, μπλε [blé] 'blue' and γαλάζιο

Colour Terms In Greek Poetry Eleanor Irwin, 1974 Colour Terms In Greek Poetry Beyond the Canon Annette Harder, Remco F. Regtuit, G. C. Wakker, 2006 This volume contains the papers of the Seventh Groningen Workshop on Hellenistic Poetry Beyond the Canon Groningen 2004 During the workshop a first draft of each of the papers was commented on by an international group of specialists in the field of Hellenistic poetry A number of previous workshops was devoted largely to the major Hellenistic poets This recent workshop explores what the poets beyond the canon of Callimachus Theocritus and Apollonius Rhodius had to offer and it discussed questions of canonicity in Hellenistic poetry on a more general level The papers in the present volume deal with a large range of authors and genres Herondas Lycophron Euphorion Hermesianax Cercidas Crates of Thebes and Alexander Aetolus and the didactic poetry of Aratus Nicander and Ps Scymnus the later bucolic poems of Moschus and Bion and the pattern poems of Simias At the same time special attention is given to the hexameter in inscribed Hellenistic epigram which is compared to that of poets in the environment of the Museum of Alexandria This volume is part of a series Every two years a Workshop on Hellenistic Poetry takes place at the University of Groningen the papers of which are published in Hellenistica Groningana Begrimed and Black Robert Earl Hood, Hood's unique and fascinating work probes the mythic roots of racial prejudice in Western attitudes toward color With special attention to the history of ideas but also to pictorial images and popular movements Hood documents the inception and growth of the myth of black carnality with its commingling of disdain and desire fear and fascination The Semantics of Colour C. P. Biggam, 2012-03-29 Human societies name and classify colours in various ways Knowing this is it possible to retrieve colour systems from the past This book presents the basic principles of modern colour semantics including the recognition of basic vocabulary subsets specialised terms and the significance of non colour features Each point is illustrated by case studies drawn from modern and historical languages from around the world These include discussions of Icelandic horses Peruvian guinea pigs medieval roses the colour yellow in Stuart England and Polynesian children's colour terms Major techniques used in colour research are presented and discussed such as the evolutionary sequence Natural Semantic Metalanguage and Vantage Theory The book also addresses whether we can understand the colour systems of the past including prehistory by combining various semantic techniques currently used in both modern and historical colour research with archaeological and environmental information The Language of Colour in the Bible Lourdes García Ureña, Emanuela Valeriani, Anna Angelini, Carlos Santos Carretero, Marina Salvador Gimeno, 2022-04-19 The Bible is one of the books that has aroused the most interest throughout history to the present day However there is one topic that has mostly been neglected and which today constitutes one of the most emblematic elements of the visual culture in which we live immersed the language of colour Colour is present in the biblical text from its beginning to its end but it has hardly been studied and we appear to have forgotten that the detailed study of the colour terms in the Bible is essential to understanding the use and symbolism that the language of colour has acquired in the literature that has forged European culture and art. The objective of the present study is to provide the modern reader with the meaning of colour terms of the lexical families related to the green tonality in order to determine whether they denote only color and if so what is the coloration expressed or whether together with the chromatic denotation another reality inseparable from colour underlies along with the chromatic denotation there is another underlying reality that is inseparable from colour. We will study the symbolism that which underpins some of these colour terms and which European culture has inherited. This lexicographical study requires a methodology that allows us to approach colour not in accordance with our modern and abstract concept of colour but with the concept of the ancient civilizations. This is why the concept of colour that emerges from each of the versions of the Bible is studied and compared with that found in theoretical reflection in both Greek and Latin. Colour thus emerges as a concrete reality visible on the surface of objects reflecting in many cases not an intrinsic quality but their state. This concept has a reflection in the biblical languages since the terms of colour always describe an entity in this sense one can say that they are embodied and include within them a wide chromatic spectrum that is they are mostly polysemic. Structuralism through the componential analysis although providing interesting contributions had at the same time serious shortcomings when it came to the study of colour. These were addressed through the theoretical framework provided by cognitive linguistics and some of its tools such as cognitive domains, metonymy and metaphor. Our study then is one of the first to apply some of the contributions of cognitive linguistics to lexicography in general and particularly with reference to the Hebrew, Greek and Latin versions of the Bible. A further novel contribution of this research is that the meaning is expressed through a definition and not through a list of possible colour terms as happens in dictionaries or in studies referring to colour in antiquity. The definition allows us to delve deeper and discover new nuances that enrich the understanding of colour in the three great civilizations involved in our study: Israel, Greece and Rome.

Brill's Companion to Classics and Early Anthropology

Emily Varto, 2018-07-17. The chapters in Brill's Companion to Classics and Early Anthropology explore key points of interaction between classics and anthropology from the eighteenth to the mid twentieth century. Ancient Greece and Rome played varying roles in early anthropological thinking from the observations of colonial officials and missionaries through the ethnography and evolutionary ethnology of the late nineteenth century and into the professionalized social sciences of the twentieth century. The chapters illuminate these roles and uncover an intellectual history of fission and fusion, exposing common interests and opposing methodologies, shared theories and conflicting datasets, close collaborations and adversarial estrangements. In augmenting and reevaluating this history, the volume offers a new and nuanced picture of the early formative relationship between the two disciplines.

Imagery of Colour & Shining in Catullus, Propertius & Horace Jacqueline Clarke, 2003. In recent years there has been growing interest in the concepts of pictorial vividness (enargeia) and pictorial description (ekphrasis) in the works of ancient writers Colour imagery can play a significant part in such pictorial effects This book explores the visual and stylistic contributions that words for colour and shining make to the poetry of Catullus Propertius and Horace First the instances of colour usage by the three poets are analyzed and compared with the colour imagery of other ancient poets and artists Colour readings of selected poems follow illustrating how colours are employed by these poets to heighten the visual impact of their poems and influence the reader's emotional responses This book fills a gap in the scholarship on colour in ancient poetry and provides fresh perspectives on the work of three important poets
