Colonialism In Question Theory Knowledge History:

Colonialism in Question Frederick Cooper, 2005-06-06 Probably the most important historian of Africa currently writing in the English language His intellectual reach and ambition have even taken influence far beyond African studies as such and he has become one of the major voices contributing to debates over empire colonialism and their aftermaths This book is a call to reinvigorate the critical way in which history can be written Cooper takes on many of the standard beliefs passing as postcolonial theory and breathes fresh air onto them Michael Watts Director of the Institute of International Studies Berkeley This is a very much needed book on Africa on intellectual artisanship and on engagement in emancipatory projects Drawing on his enormous erudition in colonial history Cooper brings together an intellectual and a moral political argument against a series of linked developments that privilege taking a stance and in favor of studying processes of struggle through engaged scholarship Jane I Guyer author of Marginal Gains Photography and History in Colonial Southern Africa Lorena

Rizzo, 2019-09-16 This book studies the relationship between photography and history in colonial Southern Africa using a series of encounters with Southern African photographic archives to reflect on photography as a distinct historical form Through use of private and public archives images produced by African itinerant photographers white settlers and colonial state institutions this book explores the relationship between photography and history in colonial Southern Africa Late nineteenth century Cape Colonial prison albums police photographs from German Southwest Africa African studio portraits identity documents travel permits and passports from the 1920s and 1930s visual studies of whiteness and blackness authored by settler photographers South African dompas photographs from the 1950s and 1960s and aerial photography from the Eastern Cape in the mid twentieth century are examined to highlight the ways in which photographic images cut across conventional institutional boundaries and complicate rigid distinctions between the private and the public the political and the aesthetic the colonial and the vernacular or the subject and the object Photography and History in Colonial Southern Africa argues that rather than understanding photographs as a means of preserving and recreating the past in the present we can value them for how they evoke at once the need for and the limits of historical reconstruction This book will be of interest to students and scholars of colonial history photographic history visual media and African studies Writing

History Stefan Berger, Heiko Feldner, Kevin Passmore, 2020-02-20 A revised edition of this highly regarded textbook which sets the study of history in a broader intellectual and analytic context showing students how theory translates into practice when studying and writing history Writing Contemporary History Robert Gildea, Anne Simonin, 2008-07-25 Writing Contemporary History brings together some of the world's most pre eminent historians to discuss the core issues confronting students of contemporary history today Tackling ten key questions of current historiographical debate each chapter sets in parallel and in opposition the contributions of two scholars Questions include Does gender history have a future When does colonial history end What is cultural history now about This volume takes to heart the central rationale of the Writing History series namely to combine theoretical reflection with the practice of producing historical texts It introduces the reader to a variety of important theoretical approaches in the field of contemporary history writing and asks how these approaches have shaped historical writing in this important sub discipline Writing Contemporary History an invaluable introduction to the central debates that have shaped the field of contemporary history

The International Journal of African Historical Studies ,2008 Native Sons Gregory Mann,2006-07-19 For much of the twentieth century France recruited colonial subjects from sub Saharan Africa to serve in its military sending West African soldiers to fight its battles in Europe Southeast Asia and North Africa In this exemplary contribution to the new imperial history Gregory Mann argues that this shared military experience between France and Africa was fundamental not only to their colonial relationship but also to the reconfiguration of that relationship in the postcolonial era Mann explains that in the early twenty first century among Africans in France and Africa and particularly in Mali where Mann conducted his research the belief that France has not adequately recognized and compensated the African veterans of its wars is widely held and frequently invoked It continues to animate the political relationship between France and Africa especially debates about African immigration to France Focusing on the period between World War I and 1968 Mann draws on archival research and extensive interviews with surviving Malian veterans of French wars to explore the experiences of the African soldiers He describes the effects their long absences and infrequent homecomings had on these men and their communities he considers the veterans status within contemporary Malian society and he examines their efforts to claim recognition and pensions from France Mann contends that Mali is as much a postslavery society as it is a postcolonial one and that specific ideas about reciprocity mutual obligation and uneven exchange that had developed during the era of slavery remain influential today informing Malians conviction that France owes them a blood debt for the military service of African soldiers in French wars
