Counselling and Identity Alex Howard, 2004-11-17. Questions relating to personal identity are of central importance within counselling, which is often seen as an essentially and perhaps excessively 'me' focussed activity. People often come to counsellors to find, reclaim, come to terms with or control aspects of themselves. They want to see how they have been shaped, helped or damaged by their circumstances. Yet there has been surprisingly little systematic examination of the conceptions of self that are or should be available to counsellors. This accessible book meets this need and more deeply than most other texts, into the foundations and underlying presuppositions of the subject. Alex Howard takes a fresh look at counselling and psychotherapy and advocates greater philosophical and sociological awareness for trainees. It highlights the necessary tools and skills to identify those patients who need referral to a GP or community mental health nurse. The basis of the diagnostic criteria and clinical guidelines are from the World Health Organisation's Guide to Mental Health UK version. Mental Health and Illness Dawn Freshwater, 2006-02-22.
