

General relativity

From the world learned of the revolutionary Special Theory of Relativity proposed by Albert Einstein and published in 1905, physics underwent its most revolutionary change since the days of Isaac Newton. Nevertheless, Einstein had yet another surprise left: the so-called General Theory of Relativity, of 1916—a much more complex and complete theory from which several interesting predictions arise and have been confirmed over time.

Why a second theory?

According to Einstein, the laws of physics are the same for all observers, but the way they are perceived is different. Einstein's theory of relativity is a generalization of Newton's theory of gravity, which is only valid in the case of weak gravitational fields. Einstein's theory of relativity is a generalization of Newton's theory of gravity, which is only valid in the case of weak gravitational fields.

A deformed universe

Einstein established that gravity was not a force, but rather the consequence of the deformation of space-time that any body with mass generates. Mass, when accumulating in a star, for example, or in a planet, is not affected by any force, but it bends through that curved deformation.

Light that bends

Perhaps the most surprising confirmation of one of Einstein's predictions, based on the General Theory of Relativity, happened in 1919 during the course of a solar eclipse.

According to the General Theory of Relativity, the path of light is curved by the presence of mass. This was demonstrated during the solar eclipse of 1919, when the light from distant stars was observed to be deflected by the Sun's gravity.

In 1919, during a solar eclipse, the light from distant stars was observed to be deflected by the Sun's gravity. This was a confirmation of Einstein's theory of relativity.

4 dimensions

For the universe according to Einstein's theory, although the space is three-dimensional, time is also a dimension, and together they form a four-dimensional spacetime.

Gravitational lenses

Another prediction based on the General Theory of Relativity concerns gravitational lenses. Because of the deformation of space-time caused by the presence of massive bodies, the light of certain far stars and galaxies is deflected when passing near the Sun.

HERSCHEL A. LEBWITZ

The first prediction based on the General Theory of Relativity was the bending of light by gravity. This was confirmed during the solar eclipse of 1919, when the light from distant stars was observed to be deflected by the Sun's gravity.

Electromagnetic waves

Einstein proposed that an intense gravitational field could produce the effects of a magnetic field. In other words, this would mean that the strong gravitational fields "bend" when being created, that is, they generate magnetism. This effect, which occurs in reality in the interior of neutron stars.

Perturbation of Mercury's orbit

Astronomers had discovered a discrepancy in the orbital position of the planet Mercury that could not be explained by Newton's theory of gravity. Einstein's theory of relativity provided the explanation for this anomaly.
