

Disaffected Democracies

- After The Crisis of Democracy, many political scientists were rather gloomy about the prospects for democratic society. In Disaffected Democracies, (2000) Pharr and Putnam acknowledge that democracy has not collapsed; on the other hand, they argue that perhaps “democracy is always in crisis” (p.311).
- They note rising levels of apathy and also diminished levels of public trust. So the question now is not about too much participation, but whether the participation that exists is motivated by disaffection from democracy, and a lack of trust in democratic institutions.
- Additionally they argue that “a certain erosion of civil society has robbed democracy of its social base” (p.313). What they mean by this is that we are losing the democratic habits that were so praised by Alexis de Tocqueville in his journeys through the United States in the early 1830’s.
- They also ask the question; is democracy historically linked to the ‘nation-state’? Put another way, if globalization is reducing the power of the nation-state, does globalization also reduce the need for (and commitment to) democracy?
