Carnivora Carnivora:

Carnivoran Evolution Anjali Goswami, Anthony Friscia, 2010-07-29 Members of the mammalian clade Carnivora have invaded nearly every continent and ocean evolving into bamboo eating pandas clam eating walruses and of course flesh eating sabre toothed cats With this ecological morphological and taxonomic diversity and a fossil record spanning over sixty million years Carnivora has proven to be a model clade for addressing questions of broad evolutionary significance This volume brings together top international scientists with contributions that focus on current advances in our understanding of carnivoran relationships ecomorphology and macroevolutionary patterns Topics range from the palaeoecology of the earliest fossil carnivorans to the influences of competition and constraint on diversity and biogeographic distributions Several studies address ecomorphological convergences among carnivorans and other mammals with morphometric and Finite Element analyses while others consider how new molecular and palaeontological data have changed our understanding of carnivoran phylogeny Combined these studies also illustrate the diverse suite of approaches and questions in evolutionary biology and palaeontology

At the Foot of the Himalayas Catherine Badgley, Michèle E. Morgan, David Pilbeam, 2025-01-28 This authoritative volume brings together decades of insights from one of the longest terrestrial fossil records on the planet The fabled Himalayas have isolated and sheltered the Indian subcontinent for millions of years The Siwalik sequence of sediments at their feet has been a treasure trove of visions into the past for generations of paleontologists preserving an immense 20 million years of terrestrial ecosystems fossil record The Siwalik sequence reveals a unique forest wonderland of diverse animal species from huge elephant relatives great rhinos and sabertooth cats to mongooses swamp rats crocodiles and catfish Regional climate change eventually caused this forest ecosystem to unravel as grasslands replaced the forests and established the habitats and animals of the modern ecosystems of the Indus and Ganges rivers In At the Foot of the Himalayas celebrated paleontologists Catherine Badgley Mich le Morgan and David Pilbeam bring together a collection of world renowned scholars to present an interdisciplinary approach to documenting and interpreting this fossil record By investigating changes in landscape climate and vertebrate species diversity their analysis reveals insights into a central question about biodiversity which evolutionary developments were influenced by changes in climate and which were caused by interactions among the species themselves This groundbreaking book illuminates for the first time a mysterious and vibrant paleontological past bringing together more than 40 years of exciting international collaborative studies that forge invaluable knowledge pathways for the ecologists evolutionary scientists and paleontologists of the future and pose important questions about our fragile ecosystems in the present day

FWS/OBS. ,1977 Case Studies in Bayesian Statistics Constantine Gatsonis, Robert E. Kass, Bradley Carlin, Alicia Carriquiry, Andrew Gelman, Isabella Verdinelli, Mike West, 2002 The series of workshops Case Studies in Bayesian Statistics at Carnegie Mellon University is unique in devoting an entire meeting to extended presentation and discussion of scientific investigations in which statisticians play central roles within integrated cross disciplinary teams The goal has been to elucidate the interplay between Bayesian theory and practice and thereby identify successful methods and indicate important directions for future research This volume contains the four invited case studies with accompanying discussion and nine contributed papers from the 4th workshop which was held September 27 28 1997 While most of the case studies in this volume come from biomedical research the reader will also find studies in environmental science and marketing research Students and teachers of statistics research statisticians and investigators from other fields should find a wealth of ideas and methods in this series of case studies
