

A collage of diverse people's faces in various colors (purple, red, yellow, black) with the text "Australia Uncovered" overlaid. The collage features several individuals: a man in a purple suit at the top center, a woman in a red top on the left, a woman in a yellow patterned top at the bottom center, a man in a yellow shirt at the bottom center-right, and a woman in a black top on the right. The background includes a palm tree and a building. The text "Australia Uncovered" is written in white, bold, sans-serif font across the middle of the collage.

Regional Development in Australia Robyn Eversole, 2015-12-22 In Australia regions are not just geographic locations they are also cultural ideas Being regional means being located outside the nation's capital cities and in the periphery of its centres of power and influence Regional development in Australia is thus significantly different than its European or American counterparts However surprisingly little has been written about the unique dynamics of development in Australia's regions this book has been written to fill this gap In recent decades the Australian government has made repeated policy efforts to achieve sustainable development in its non metropolitan areas Over the same period those who live and work outside the nation's capital cities have come to identify as regional Australians This book takes an anthropological approach to understanding the particularities of regional development in Australia It draws upon rich on the ground observations of towns industries universities development organisations and communities across different settings to provide an in depth understanding of the subject This book will be of interest to researchers and practitioners concerned with regional development and policy
