Neotropical Birds of Prey David F Whitacre, 2013-03-01. Until recently surprisingly little has been known about the biology and behavior of tropical forest raptors including such basic aspects as diets, breeding biology, habitat requirements and population ecology information critical to the development of conservation efforts. The Peregrine Fund conducted a significant eight year long research program on the raptor species including owls in Tikal National Park in Guatemala to learn more about Neotropical birds of prey. Impressive and unprecedented in scale, this pioneering research also involved the development of new methods for detecting, enumerating and studying these magnificent but often elusive birds in their forest home. Beautifully illustrated with photographs of previously little known species, the resulting book is the most important single source for information on the lowland tropical forest raptor species found in Central America. Neotropical Birds of Prey covers twenty specific species in depth including the Ornate Hawk Eagle, the Barred Forest Falcon, the Bat Falcon, and the Mexican Wood Owl, offering thorough synopses of all current knowledge regarding breeding biology and behavior, diet, habitat use and spatial needs. Contributors to this landmark work also show how the populations fit together as a community with overlapping habitat and prey needs that can put them in competition with reptiles and mammalian carnivores as well, yet differ from one another in their nesting or feeding behaviors and population dynamics. The work's substantive original data offer interesting comparisons between tropical and temperate zone species and provide a basis for establishing conservation measures based on firsthand research. Making available for the first time new data on the biology, ecology, behavior and conservation of the majestic owls and raptors of the New World tropics, this book will appeal to a wide ornithological readership, especially the many raptor enthusiasts around the world.

Australian High Country Raptors Jerry Olsen, 2014-06-18. Australian High Country Raptors covers raptor species that regularly breed in the high country above 600 metres from Goulburn in New South Wales down to the hills outside Melbourne, Victoria. Author Jerry Olsen explores the nature of these striking animals that are classified as Accipitriformes (diurnal hawks, falcons, kites and eagles), Falconiformes and Strigiformes (nocturnal owls). Comparisons between these high country raptors and lower elevation breeders are also provided, in addition to comparisons with raptors found overseas, especially from North America and Europe. The book begins with a description of habitats and vegetation types in the high country and which raptors are likely to be seen in each habitat type. It continues with sections on finding and watching raptors raptor identification hunting styles food breeding and behaviour and conservation Appendices provide species accounts for diurnal breeding species in the high country with basic information about their ecology distribution and conservation as well as detailed instructions about handling an injured or orphaned raptor Illustrated throughout with photographs and drawings Australian High Country Raptors offers readers a chance to look into the lives of Australia's fascinating birds of prey Eric Hosking's Birds of Prey of the World Eric John Hosking, David Hosking, Jim Flegg, 1987
