Autographs For Freedom:

Autographs for Freedom. Edited by J. G. Julia Griffiths, 1853 Autographs for Freedom Various, 2022-09-16

Autographs for Freedom is a compelling anthology that compiles a series of powerful letters and writings advocating for emancipation and civil rights originating from the mid 19th century. This collection is not merely a historical document; it is a rich tapestry of voices that reflects the abolitionist movement's fervor and the socio-political climate of the time. Through the eloquent prose and passionate appeals of its contributors, the book exemplifies a literary style that balances persuasive rhetoric with personal narrative, illustrating the deep moral convictions that ignited a nationwide call for freedom and justice. The authorial collective behind this work consists of prominent abolitionists, noted speakers, and ordinary individuals drawn together by a shared mission to eradicate slavery. Influenced by the moral imperatives of their time and often shaped by personal experiences with oppression and disenfranchisement, these writers articulate their hopes and fears with unyielding conviction. Their collective effort encapsulates the spirit of an era characterized by radical socio-political change, offering insight into the diverse strategies employed in the struggle for freedom. I highly recommend Autographs for Freedom to scholars and general readers alike, as it not only serves as an essential resource for understanding the abolitionist movement but also resonates today as a timeless reminder of the ongoing fight for human rights. This book invites readers to engage with history in a way that is both educational and deeply moving, encouraging reflection on current social justice challenges.

Autographs for Freedom, Volume 2 (of 2) (1854) Julia Griffiths, 2017-06-09. INTRODUCTION: The Colored People's Industrial College. WHAT SOME OF THE BUILDERS HAVE THOUGHT: A word oft times is expressive of an entire policy. Such is the term Abolition. Though formerly used as a synonym of Anti-Slavery, people now clearly understand that the designs of those who have ranged themselves under the first of these systems of reform are of deeper significance and wider scope than are the objects contemplated by the latter and concern themselves not only with the great primary question of bodily freedom but take in also the collateral issues connected with human enfranchisement independent of race complexion or sex The Abolitionist of to day is the Iconoclast of the age and his mission is to break the idolatrous images set up by a hypocritical Church a Sham Democracy or a corrupt public sentiment and to substitute in their stead the simple and beautiful doctrine of a common brotherhood He would elevate every creature by abolishing the hinderances and checks imposed upon him whether these be legal or social and in proportion as such grievances are invidious and severe in such measure does he place himself in the front rank of the battle to wage his emancipating war Therefore it is that the Abolitionist has come to be considered the especial friend of the negro since he of all others has been made to drink deep from the cup of oppression The free colored man at the north for his bond brother as for himself has trusted hopefully in the increasing public sentiment which in the multiplication of these friends has made his future prospects brighter And to day while he is making a noble struggle to vindicate the claims of his entire class depending mainly for the accomplishment of that end on his own exertions he passes in review the devotion and sacrifices made in his behalf gratitude is in his heart and thanks fell from his lips But in one department of reformatory exertion he feels that he has been neglected He has seen his pledged allies throw themselves into the hottest of the battle to fight for the Abolition of Capital Punishment for the Prohibition of the Liquor Traffic for the Rights of Women and similar reforms but he has failed to see a corresponding earnestness according to the influence of Abolitionists in the business world in opening the avenues of industrial labor to the proscribed youth of the land This work therefore is evidently left for himself to do And he has laid his powers to the task The record of his conclusions was given at Rochester in July and has become already a part of history Though shut out from the workshops of the country he is determined to make self provision so as to triumph over the spirit of caste that would keep him degraded The utility of the Industrial Institution he would erect must he believes commend itself to Abolitionists But not only to them The verdict of less liberal minds has been given already in its favor The usefulness the self respect and self dependence the combination of intelligence and handicraft the accumulation of the materials of wealth all referable to such an Institution present fair claims to the assistance of the entire American people Whenever emancipation shall take place immediate though it be the subjects of it like many who now make up the so called free population will be in what Geologists call the Transition State The prejudice now felt against them for bearing on their persons the brand of slaves cannot die out immediately Severe trials will still be their portion the curse of a taunted race must be expiated by almost miraculous proofs of advancement and some of these miracles must be antecedent to the great day of Jubilee
