Automated Battlefield:

The Automated Battlefield Frank Barnaby, 1986 Arms and Artificial Intelligence Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 1987 The impact of information technology in the field of military decision making is superficially less visible than that of a number of other weapon developments though its importance has grown steadily since the beginning of the 1980s Owing to its potential role in modern weapon systems and the prospect of its inclusion as an essential ingredient in many military projects such as the Strategic Defence Initiative it has become the focus of special interest and efforts This book is the first attempt to present a broad overview of the prospects for information technology in general and machine intelligence in particular in the context of international security The dangers and promises of weapon and arms control applications of computers and artificial intelligence to decision making processes are analysed in a technical strategic and political perspective by experts from six different countries In an introductory chapter Allan Din presents a generic overview of artificial intelligence and its prospects Thirteen contributors then discuss the conceptual and technical framework of artificial intelligence analyse implications for weapon systems and strategy and discuss possible applications to arms control verification and modelling

Arms Uncontrolled Frank Barnaby, Ronald Huisken, Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, 1975 The arms race has become a global phenomenon Each year the world spends a staggering sum on armaments total military expenditure is almost equal to the entire national income of the poorer half of mankind aid given underdeveloped countries is a mere 5 percent of money spent for military purposes resources devoted to medical research are less than a quarter of those devoted to military research and development
