Chadwick-Jones,Nigel Nicholson,Colin Brown,1982 Automation and Human Performance Raja Parasuraman,Mustapha Mouloua,2018-01-29 There is perhaps no facet of modern society where the influence of computer automation has not been felt Flight management systems for pilots diagnostic and surgical aids for physicians navigational displays for drivers and decision aiding systems for air traffic controllers represent only a few of the numerous domains in which powerful new automation technologies have been introduced The benefits that have been reaped from this technological revolution have been many At the same time automation has not always worked as planned by designers and many problems have arisen from minor inefficiencies of operation to large scale catastrophic accidents Understanding how humans interact with automation is vital for the successful design of new automated systems that are both safe and efficient The influence of automation technology on human performance has often been investigated in a fragmentary isolated manner with investigators conducting disconnected studies in different domains There has been little contact between these endeavors although principles gleaned from one domain may have implications for another Also with a few exceptions the research has tended to be empirical and only theory driven In recent years however various groups of investigators have begun to examine human performance in automated systems in general and to develop theories of human interaction with automation technology This book presents the current theories and assesses the impact of automation on different aspects of human performance Both basic and applied research is presented to highlight the general principles of human computer interaction in several domains where automation technologies are widely implemented The major premise is that a broad based theory driven approach will have significant implications for the effective design of both current and future automation technologies This volume will be of considerable value to researchers in human Cognitive Automation and Organizational Psychology Alexander D. Stajkovic,Kayla Sergent,2019-06-10 Jobs that were once well defined are now multifaceted New realities have placed a premium on employee cognitive processing to fulfill complex occupational roles But human conscious cognitive capacity is limited making it nearly impossible for employees to keep up without being overloaded Stajkovi and Sergent refute the common assumption that technological automation is the only way forward Instead they directly tackle the issue of employee cognitive overload by proposing cognitive automation as an alternative solution The authors present a sampling of cutting edge research showing that conscious guidance is not required for all goal pursuits goal directed behavior at work can be automated via priming of subconscious goals Building on research in social psychology and organizational behavior Stajkovi and Sergent introduce four models to explain how subconscious goals are primed in organizations Auto motive model Repeated practice with a goal makes cognitive automation possible Goal contagion Observing and inferring goals of others creates cognitive automation Means goal priming Confidence in your goal pursuit enhances cognitive automation A history of reinforcement Money feedback and social recognition used to reinforce goal achievement become associated with the goal resulting in cognitive automation The authors canvas a broad range of knowledge concerning the problem of employee cognitive overload in contemporary organizations and rely on multidisciplinary research to propose cognitive automation as a solution that can address it directly This book is a deep well of valuable information for those interested in solving real work problems with application of science of organizational behavior SOB XXX International Congress of Psychology: Abstracts Michele Robert,2017-10-03 The abstracts of the XXX International Congress of Psychology July 2012 Cape Town are published as a supplement to Volume 47 of the International Journal of Psychology The published volume includes the abstracts of the invited addresses symposia oral and poster presentations numbering over 5 000 separate contributions and creating an invaluable overview of the discipline of psychological science around the world today Social Aspects of Innovation and Industrial Technology Lewis Frederick Abbott,1976 Annotated bibliography of occupational sociology research on Innovation and technological change Manpower and Applied Psychology ,1967 Applied Social Psychology A Global Perspective V.K.
