Automorphisms and Derivations of Associative Rings V. Kharchenko, 2012-12-06 Maps Preserving Products and Derivations Vahid Darvish, Nadeem ur Rehman, Mohd Arif Raza, Junaid Nisar, 2026-04-14 The volume explores the preservation properties of maps within complex algebraic structures It comprises two parts The first section focuses on the analysis of maps that preserve products within various algebraic frameworks including semiprime rings matrix algebras and von Neumann algebras It examines the conditions under which these maps maintain product structures providing insights into their behaviour and implications in different algebraic settings The discussions extend to the exploration of specific cases where these preservation properties are crucial offering a detailed examination of how product preserving maps influence the structural integrity of diverse algebraic entities The second section shifts attention to the study of maps that preserve derivations which play a critical role in the study of algebraic structures and their transformations This part explores various forms of derivations and the maps that preserve them highlighting their impact on the underlying algebraic structures It delves into both linear and nonlinear contexts examining how these maps affect the properties and behaviour of rings and algebras offering valuable insights into the algebraic theory of derivations The volume is a comprehensive resource for researchers and practitioners interested in the preservation properties of algebraic maps contributing to advancing knowledge in the field of algebraic structures and their symmetries Key Features Explores advanced concepts in algebraic structures Covers both product and derivation preservation Comprehensive coverage of both additive and linear maps Provides valuable theoretical and practical insights Essential resource for advanced researchers Automorphisms and Derivations of Finite Dimensional Associative Algebras James D.
