

Australian Criminal Justice system

The Australian criminal justice system comprises three separate sections:

Investigative process (this involves investigations by State or Federal police);

Adjudicative process (a case is taken before the courts to be heard and a penalty is imposed); and

Penal or correctional stage (if found guilty of a serious offence, the offender completes a term of community service, serves his or her sentence in prison or some other correctional system).

While similar in character, each State and Territory has its own criminal justice system. Therefore, laws, penalties and corrections for offenders and the arrangements for administering justice may differ across States and Territories.
