Authenticity And Early Music A Symposium:

Authenticity and Early Music Nicholas Kenyon, 1988 Nothing has more profoundly influenced the development of music making over the last two decades than the growth of the historical performance movement Perceived by some as a threat an indication of our loss of faith in our powers of musical creation and by others as part of the evolution of modern attitudes towards performing styles this trend towards historically correct interpretation has inspired lively debate among scholars and performers Examining and questioning the prevailing basis for the so called authenticity movement this collection of papers deals with the conflict between approaching early music performance with respect for the composer s original intentions and the shortcomings according to many musicians that this produces The contributors include Will Crutchfield Howard Mayer Brown Robert Morgan Philip Brett and Richard Taruskin

Authenticity and Early Music Nicholas Kenyon, 1989 History, Ethics, and the Recognition of the Other Anton Froeyman, 2015-09-25 This book introduces a new way of looking at the writing of history Rather than as the production of knowledge or the telling of stories it sees writing history as an ethical existential and emotional engagement with the people from the past The conceptual and philosophical basis for this view is provided by the philosophy of Emmanuel Levinas In the first part the view is presented and contrasted with other competing views such as those of Hans Georg Gadamer and Michel Foucault In the second part the view is argued for most importantly by an in depth discussion of one specific tradition of history writing microhistory and a series of close readings of several classical works from the history of historiography The third part finally explores some of the methodological consequences of this view and applies it to a non academic way of dealing with the past namely historical performance practice in music The book features a foreword by Frank Ankersmit

Renaissance Music Kenneth Kreitner, 2017-07-05 We know what say a Josquin mass looks like but what did it sound like This is a much more complex and difficult question than it may seem Kenneth Kreitner has assembled twenty articles published between 1946 and 2009 by scholars exploring the performance of music from the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries The collection includes works by David Fallows Howard Mayer Brown Christopher Page Margaret Bent and others covering the voices and instruments debate of the 1980s the performance of sixteenth century sacred and secular music the role of instrumental ensembles and problems of pitch standards and musica ficta Together the papers form not just a comprehensive introduction to the issues of renaissance performance practice but a compendium of clear thinking and elegant writing about a perpetually intriguing period of music history

Beyond Aesthetics Christopher Pinney, Nicholas Thomas, 2020-05-25 The anthropology of art is currently at a crossroads Although well versed in the meaning of art in small scale tribal societies anthropologists are still wrestling with the question of how to interpret art in a complex post colonial environment Alfred Gell recently confronted this problem in his posthumous book Art and Agency The central thesis of his study was that art objects could be seen not as bearers of meaning or aesthetic value but as forms mediating social action At a stroke Gell provocatively dismissed many longstanding but tired questions of definition and issues of aesthetic value His book proposed a novel perspective on the roles of art in political practice and made fresh links between analyses of style tradition and society Offering a new overview of the anthropology of art this book begins where Gell left off Presenting wide ranging critiques of the limits of aesthetic interpretation the workings of objects in practice the relations between meaning and efficacy and the politics of postcolonial art its distinguished contributors both elaborate on and dissent from the controversies of Gell's important text Subjects covered include music and the internet as well as ethnographic traditions and contemporary indigenous art Geographically its case studies range from India to Oceania to North America and Europe
