CONCUR 2000 - Concurrency Theory Catuscia Palamidessi, 2003-06-26 This volume contains the proceedings of the 11th International Conference on Concurrency Theory CONCUR 2000 held in State College Pennsylvania USA during 22-25 August 2000. The purpose of the CONCUR conferences is to bring together researchers, developers, and students in order to advance the theory of concurrency and promote its applications. Interest in this topic is continuously growing as a consequence of the importance and ubiquity of concurrent systems and their applications and of the scientific relevance of their foundations. The scope covers all areas of semantics, logics, and verification techniques for concurrent systems. Topics include concurrency-related aspects of models of computation, semantic domains, process algebras, Petri nets, event structures, real-time systems, hybrid systems, decidability, model checking, verification techniques, re-nement techniques, term and graph rewriting, distributed programming, logic constraint programming, object-oriented programming, typing systems, and algorithms, case studies, tools, and environments for programming and verification. The first two CONCUR conferences were held in Amsterdam, NL, in 1990 and 1991. The following ones were held in Stony Brook, USA; Hildesheim, D; Uppsala, S; Philadelphia, USA; Pisa, I; Warsaw, PL; Nice, F; and Eindhoven, NL. The proceedings have appeared in Springer LNCS as Volumes 458, 527, 630, 715, 836, 962, 1119, 1243, 1466, and 1664.

Immune system modeling and analysis Ramit Mehr, Miles Davenport, 2015-04-22 The rapid development of new methods for immunological data collection from multicolor flow cytometry through single-cell imaging to deep sequencing presents us now for the first time with the ability to analyze and compare large amounts of immunological data in health, aging, and disease. The exponential growth of these datasets, however, challenges the theoretical immunology community to develop methods for data organization and analysis. Furthermore, the need to test hypotheses regarding immune function and generate predictions regarding the outcomes of medical interventions necessitates the development of mathematical and computational models covering processes on multiple scales, from the genetic and molecular to the cellular and system scales. The last few decades have seen the development of methods for presentation and analysis of clonal repertoires, those of T and B lymphocytes, and phenotypic surface marker-based repertoires of all lymphocyte types, and for modeling the intricate network of molecular and cellular interactions within the immune systems. This e-Book, which has first appeared as a Frontiers in Immunology research topic, provides a comprehensive online, open-access snapshot of the current state of the art on immune system modeling and analysis.

Electronic String Art Stephen Erfle, 2024-02-20 String art is a well known and popular activity that uses string a board and nails to produce artistic images although there are variations that use different modalities This activity is beloved because simple counting rules are used to create beautiful images that can both adorn walls and excite young minds The downside of this highly tactile activity is that it is quite time consuming and rigid By contrast electronic string art offers much more flexibility to set up or change nail locations and counting rules and the images created from those changes change instantaneously Electronic String Art Rhythmic Mathematics invites readers to use the author's digital resources available on the ESA website to play with the parameters inherent in string art models while offering concise accessible explanations of the underlying mathematical principles regarding how the images were created and how they change Readers will have the opportunity to create visually beautiful works of art while learning concepts from geometry number theory and modular arithmetic from approximately 200 short interdependent sections Features Readers are able to drill down on images in order to understand why they work using short 1 to 2 page stand alone sections Sections are lessons that were created so that they could be digested in a single sitting These sections are stand alone in the sense that they need not be read sequentially but can be referred to based on images that the reader finds interesting An open ended inherently flexible teaching resource for elementary middle and high school level mathematics The most mathematically challenging sections or portions of a section are designated MA and may not be accessible to elementary and middle school readers Will be appreciated by anyone interested in recreational mathematics or mathematical artworks even if the users are not interested in the underlying mathematics Includes exercises solutions and many online digital resources These QR codes take you to these digital resources One takes you directly to the web version of the string art model used as a starting point for teaching the parameters of the model in Section 25.5 The other takes you to the ESA web page with additional links to a variety of resources

The general purpose with which this book has been written is sufficiently indicated by its title I have selected a number of the classical experiments of Experimental Psychology and have tried to present them in such a way that their performance shall have a real disciplinary value for the undergraduate student Within this general purpose my aim has been two fold I have sought to show in the first place that psychology is above the laboratory that we employ our instruments of precision not for their own sake but solely because they help us to a refined and more accurate introspection And secondly just as in my Outline of Psychology and Primer of Psychology I gave the results of experimentation a prominent place in the psychological system so here I have treated the selected experiments not as separate exercises but as points of departure for systematic discussion
