

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

States of America

Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth a separate and equal station, it is their right, it is their duty, it is their obligation to them, and to the world, to declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to promote their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a Case, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly all experienced Men in every Country have regarded this as a great Principle, that Whenever the same Violations have taken place, a long Sufferance should be tolerated by the People, in order to give them an Opportunity of reforming themselves. But when a long Train of such Abuses and Misuses has appeared, and when every Effort has been made to redress them in vain, a prudent People are bound to remove them, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles, and organizing its Powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to promote their Safety and Happiness. We the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress assembled, do hereby declare that the above are the Causes which have impelled us to sever the political Bands which have connected us with Great Britain, and that we are united to each other as free and independent States, absolving ourselves from all Allegiance to that Kingdom, and that we are united to each other as one People, in the pursuit of Happiness, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.
