Christian Materialist:

Materialist Christianity Ezra Byrd, 2025-08-13 Materialist Christianity is a revolutionary synthesis of Christian moral teaching and historical materialism. Written from the perspective of an atheist who has walked through the Bible with both reverence and critical clarity, it argues that Christianity did not invent morality but discovered it, unearthing objective truths about human flourishing through lived history. This work treats Scripture not as a supernatural decree but as the record of humanity's evolving moral consciousness, forged in the struggles, betrayals, and redemptions of real people. Through personal narrative, historical analysis, and dialectical reasoning, the book reveals how biblical morality emerged as the end point of a long social process, one that even secular humanists unknowingly inherit. It dismantles the false divide between believer and nonbeliever, showing that both are engaged in the same moral project, shaped by the same forces. It confronts difficult passages without dismissal or apology, finding their purpose within the material conditions of their time and their contribution to the moral arc of history. Blending memoir and philosophy, Materialist Christianity moves from the author's own lived experiences, marked by labor, love, betrayal, and devotion, to the deep structure of Christian ethics as the culmination of humanity's search for truth. It draws on the concept of sub-objects, unseen social rules that shape behavior and sub-object resonance, the field of meaning created by symbols, to explain why Christian morality persists and why it matters, even absent metaphysical belief. The book's ultimate claim is that Christianity survives not because it is immune to contradiction but because it has endured and grown through it. At its heart, Materialist Christianity calls for unity between atheists and Christians under the shared recognition that the teachings of Christ, understood materially, offer the most complete moral framework yet discovered, one capable of guiding humanity through the crises of the present and into a just future.

Rethinking Human Nature Kevin J. Corcoran, 2006-06-01 What are we as human persons? Are we immaterial souls capable of disembodied existence, or merely animals destined to dust? For centuries, scholars have debated this issue, and that debate continues today. But the question of human nature can no longer remain a topic for discussion within the hallowed halls of the academy. End-of-life ethical decisions, human cloning, fetal tissue transplants, and stem cell research all reveal the urgency and the importance of the question for ordinary people. Rethinking Human Nature offers a fascinating look at what it means to be human by defending the constitutional view, which suggests we are constituted by our bodies without being identical to the bodies that constitute us. Grounded in Scripture, this book connects the theology and philosophy of human nature with the moral conundrums that confront us at the margins of life.

Christian Atheism Slavoj Žižek, 2024-04-04 If we want to be true atheists, do we have to begin with a religious edifice and undermine it from within? Slavoj Žižek has long been a commentator on and critic of Christian theology. His preoccupation with Badiou's concept of the event, alongside the Pauline thought of the New Testament, has led to a decidedly theological turn in his thinking. Drawing on traditions and subjects as broad as Buddhist thought, dialectical materialism, political subjectivity, quantum physics, AI, and chatbots, this book articulates i ek s idea of a religious life for the first time Christian Atheism is a unique insight into i ek s theological project and the first book length exploration of his religious thinking In his own words to become a true dialectical materialist one should go through the Christian experience Crucial to his whole conception of experience is not some kind of spiritual revelation but rather the logic of materialistic thought This affirmation of Christian theology whilst simultaneously deconstructing it is a familiar i ekian move but one that holds deep seated political philosophical and in the end personal import for him Here is i ek s most extensive treatment of theology and religion to date      Has Man a Future? James,John Reader,2016-03-09 A Philosophy of Christian Materialism offers a new religious engagement with the public sphere via means of interdisciplinary analysis and empirical examples developing what the authors call a Relational Christian Realism building upon interaction with contemporary Philosophy of Religion The book argues that the current discourse on public religion is inadequate in addressing the issues now to be faced including material religious practice in the sphere of education the growth of alternative political movements and the developing awareness of environmental concerns and urban social justice Key concepts that support this strategic analysis are entangled fidelities the form of a materialist religious practice the possibility of a relational Christian realism including new developments in how we interpret key categories of doctrine including God and creation salvation and humanity and the post secular public sphere including the emerging phenomenon of postsecular rapprochement namely the coming together of both religious and secular actors in methodologies and politics of pragmatism as well as ethical discourse for the sake of the public commons Co authored by theologians in both the USA and the UK this book represents an exciting contribution to philosophy and practice of religion on both sides of the Atlantic and aspires to be sufficiently interdisciplinary to also appeal to readerships engaged in the study of modern political and social trends Christianity and Infidelity Griffith Henry Humphrey,1877 The Rainbow, a magazine of Christian literature ,1884 Jewish Glass and Christian Stone Eric C. Smith,2017-11-15 In recent years scholars have re evaluated the parting of the ways between Judaism and Christianity reaching new understandings of the ways shared origins gave way to two distinct and sometimes inimical religious traditions But this has been a profoundly textual task relying on the writings of rabbis bishops and other text producing elites to map the terrain of the parting This book takes up the question of the divergence of Judaism and Christianity in terms of material the stuff made used and left behind by the persons that lived in and between these religions as they were developing Considering the glass clay stone paint vellum and papyrus of ancient Jews and Christians this book maps the parting in new ways and argues for a greater role for material and materialism in our reconstructions of the past
