Youth and the Bright Medusa (Classic Reprint) Willa Cather,2015-07-11 Excerpt from Youth and the Bright Medusa Don Hedger had lived for four years on the top floor of an old house on the south side of Washington Square and nobody had ever disturbed him He occupied one big room with no outside exposure except on the north where he had built in a many paned studio window that looked upon a court and upon the roofs and walls of other buildings His room was very cheerless since he never got a ray of direct sunlight the south corners were always in shadow In one of the corners was a clothes closet built against the partition in another a wide divan serving as a seat by day and a bed by night In the front corner the one farther from the window was a sink and a table with two gas burners where he sometimes cooked his food There too in the perpetual dusk was the dog s bed and often a bone or two for his comfort The dog was a Boston bull terrier and Hedger explained his surly disposition by the fact that he had been bred to the point where it told on his nerves His name was Caesar III and he had taken prizes at very exclusive dog shows About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
