Britain And The Western Seaways:

Britain and the Western Seaways Emrys George Bowen, 1972 Britain and the Western Seaways Emrys George Bowen, 1972 Continental Connections Hugo Anderson-Whymark, Duncan Garrow, Fraser Sturt, 2015-02-26 The prehistories of Britain and Ireland are inescapably entwined with continental European narratives The central aim here is to explore cross channel relationships throughout later prehistory investigating the archaeological links material social cultural between the areas we now call Britain and Ireland and continental Europe from the Mesolithic through to the end of the Iron Age Since the separation from the European mainland of Ireland c 16 000 BC and Britain c 6000 BC their island nature has been seen as central to many aspects of life within them helping to define their senses of identity and forming a crucial part of their neighbourly relationship with continental Europe and with each other However it is important to remember that the surrounding seaways have often served to connect as well as to separate these islands from the continent In approaching the subject of continental connections in the long term and by bringing a variety of different archaeological perspectives associated with different periods to bear on it this volume provides a new a new synthesis of the ebbs and flows of the cross channel relationship over the course of 15 000 years of later prehistory enabling fresh understandings and new insights to emerge about the intimately linked trajectories of change in both regions Archaeologia Cambrensis ,2000 Manx Kingship in Its Irish Sea Setting, 1187-1229 Russell Andrew McDonald, 2007 For over forty years King Ragnvald Godredsson of Man and the Isles was a power to be reckoned with in the seas between Britain and Ireland This book explores Ragnvald s reign within the framework of the dynasty to which he belonged the Crovan dynasty and the ultra competitive arena of the Irish Sea basin in the decades around 1200 The Atlantic Iron Age Jon Henderson, 2007-12-01 It may be surprising to learn that this book is the first ever survey of the Atlantic Iron Age this tradition is cited in archaeology frequently enough to seem firmly established yet has never been clearly defined With this book Jon Henderson provides an important and much needed exploration of the archaeology of western areas of Britain Ireland France and Spain to consider how far Atlantic Iron Age communities were in contact with each other By examining the evidence for settlement and maritime trade as well as aspects of the material culture of each area Henderson identifies distinct Atlantic social identities through time He also pinpoints areas of similarity the possibility of cultural cross pollination caused by maritime links and to what extent these contacts influenced and altered the distinctive character of local communities A major theme running through the book is the role of the Atlantic seaboard itself and what impact this unique environment had on the ways Atlantic communities perceived themselves and their place in the world As a history of these communities unfolds a general archaeological Atlantic identity breaks down into a range of regional identities which compare interestingly with each other and with traditional models of Celtic identity Bringing together the Iron Age settlement evidence for the Atlantic regions in one place for the first time this excellent and original book is certain to establish itself as the definitive study of the Atlantic Iron Age Proceedings of the British Academy, 2009 The Literature of Cornwall Alan M. Kent, 2000 Seaways of the Empire Arthur John Sargent, 1918 The Archaeology of Islands Paul Rainbird, 2007-07-09 Archaeologists have traditionally considered islands as distinct physical and social entities In this book Paul Rainbird discusses the historical construction of this characterization and questions the basis for such an understanding of island archaeology Through a series of case studies of prehistoric archaeology in the Mediterranean Pacific Baltic and Atlantic seas and oceans he argues for a decentering of the land in favor of an emphasis on the archaeology of the sea and ultimately a new perspective on the making of maritime communities The archaeology of islands is thus unshackled from approaches that highlight boundedness and isolation and replaced with a new set of principles that boundaries are fuzzy islanders are distinctive in their expectation of contacts with people from over the seas and that island life can tell us much about maritime communities Debating islands thus brings to the fore issues of identity and community and a concern with Western construction of other peoples Papers University of Edinburgh. Department of Geography, 1950 Settlement and Society in Medieval Ireland Francis X. Martin, 1988 Geography, 1955 Ireland and Europe in the Middle Ages R. A. Stalley, 1994 Professor Stalley began to explore Ireland's rich legacy of medieval art in 1969 at a time when it was little known by students abroad From the start his principal aim was to discover how Irish art fitted into its European context an aim which led to a series of important comparative studies on major European monuments both Romanesque and Gothic Having begun his career as a historian the author has been concerned with the social and political implications of medieval art particularly the effect of the racial divisions that existed in medieval Ireland He has written about Irish cathedrals as well as the buildings of the Cistercian monks and Franciscan friars He has also investigated the royal programme of castle building in the thirteenth century Other essays in this volume include a fascinating account of the repercussions of the pilgrimage to Santiago de Compostela as well as a consideration of the influence of Viking styles on Hiberno Romanesque sculpture In recent years Professor Stalley has turned his attention to the high crosses writing with authority on the iconography of these complex monuments The opening essay in the volume is devoted to the patronage of Henry I's justiciar Bishop Roger of Salisbury whose cathedral at Sarum was destined to influence the course of Irish Romanesque The Prehistory and Early History of Atlantic Europe European Association of Archaeologists. Annual Meeting, Jon C. Henderson, 2000 Papers from a session held at the European Association of Archaeologists Fourth Annual Meeting in G teborg 1998 The contents of this volume are largely made up from papers delivered at The Prehistory and Early History of Atlantic Europe session held on the 25th of September 1998 at the 4th Annual Meeting of the European Association of Archaeologists in G teborg Sweden The aim of this volume in common with the original aim of the session is quite simply to promote wider discussion on the existence scale and significance of maritime communications between Atlantic communities Anglo-Saxon/Irish Relations Before the Vikings James

Graham-Campbell, Michael Ryan, 2009-12-24 These essays provide the first interdisciplinary assessment of the links between the Anglo Saxons and the Irish before 800 This overview of recent advances in the field ranges widely in scope covering language and literature legal traditions ecclesiastical history and the evidence of material culture through art history and archaeology Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1980 Subject Catalog, 1978 Library of Congress, 1978
